Wenger Receives Delp Award, Lancaster Century Farms Named

Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Since the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry is the only county organization of this type in the nation to have a full time agricultural services manager, the annual ag/industry banquet Tuesday evening became a platform for recognizing the cooperative and interdependent efforts that exist between farm and city.

"People who work together and share common destinations get there quicker and easier if they travel on the thrust of one another," said Louis Varljen, chairman, chamber board. "In Lancaster County we have 5,030 farms with 421,000 acres; $701 million in sales that help to create 30,000 non-agricultural jobs. Everything you touch has ties to agriculture."

Jim Shirk, ag services manager, agreed. "We believe a strong agriculture is important to a strong Lancaster County economy," Shirk said. "We are committed to insure a viable, profitable ag economy in the county for generations to follow."

Six years ago the chamber established the George C. Delp award to recognize individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the agricultural industry of Lancaster County. Ken Meck, chairman of the ag committee, anounced the

Brant Honored By York Extension

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BAIR (York Co.) — York County's Cooperative Extension Service has named Tom Brant the latest winner of the Extension Involvement Award.

The surprise honor was announced as the highlight of the York Extension Service's annual meeting, held Nov. 10 at the York 4-H Center.

"No task is too small or too large for Tom Brant," said extension horticulture specialist Tom Becker, who made the presentation. "He is instrumental in promoting agriculture in hundreds of ways, often working out of the limelight."

Brant has been involved in extension programs for 35 years, beginning as a 4-H member exhibiting a beef club steer. As manager of D. E. Horn and Company of Red Lion for nearly 20 years, he supported extension efforts in numerous ways, including support and sponsorship of many 4-H activities and events.

He has served as president and vice president of the Extension Association, served on the agronomy and livestock advisory committees, and represented the county at various regional and state cooperative extension activities. Brant has further served as a board and executive board member of the 4-H Center.

Brant's involvement also includes serving as a director of the Pennsylvania Livestock Association, co-chaired its popular

National Grange In Harrisburg Adopts Policy, Elects Officers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — National Grange policy was developed this past week in Harrisburg as hundreds of members and delegates attended the organization's annual convention.

The National Grange is a 129-year-old — the nation's oldest — general farm and rural family organization with 300,000 members in 37 states representing 3,600 local Grange chapters.

Ending this week, it had been more than 30 years since the national convention was last held in Pennsylvania. This year it was at the Harrisburg Hilton and Towers.

Policy is developed and approved locally and submitted to state organizations, where it is refined, and ultimately is proposed before the delegate body for consideration as national policy.

Five major policies were approved during the convention.

Those policies focus on private property rights and environmental concerns; parental rights; the treatment of the dairy industry in the new Farm Bill; simplifying taxes; and establishing a means-testing to determine commodity support payments to achieve directing support toward those who need it (i.e. family and smaller local farms.)

As far as its dairy policy, the delegate body approved a policy to maintain the current marketing order system and make the export market more accessible for the dairy industry.

This comes against efforts in Washington D.C. to strip the Farm Bill of all dairy marketing orders — in effect to deregulate the industry — and to allow the industry to reform as the market, (financial and regulatory) ability, and opportunity allows.

Some speculate that such deregulation of the dairy industry could mean the cessation of independent dairies and family dairy farms.

The potential effect of deregulation with cooperatives is not as clear, but with dairy futures trading possible, and contract dairy production being considered more likely, some paint a scenario of a few large dairy corporations becoming established, with perhaps early drops in retail dairy prices, but eventually higher consumer prices than what a more competitive (as is now the case) production industry would demand.

Also, there is a possibility that more imported dairy products could enter the market, further

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Tuesday November 21, 1995

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News
Daily National Grain Summary

Grain and soybean bids were all lower in slow trading ahead of the holiday this week. No new exports were reported overnight for any commodity and profit taking set in on the board. Wheat 1 to 7 cents lower. Corn 1 to 4 cents lower. Sorghum 5 to 8 cents lower. Soy- beans 1 to 6 cents lower. Wheat bids lost yesterday's gains in pre-holiday trading. Export demand continued nill and nothing on the books at this time. Some dry weather in winter wheat growing areas, limited declines. Corn and soybean bids extended Monday's losses as export sales re- main quiet, fund selling on the board continued and a pick up in farmer selling ahead of the Thanksgiving holiday. This could be the story the rest of the week.

FIRST TOBACCO SALE:
DECEMBER 4, 1995 - 10 am
1st Sale - FREE LUNCH to Buyers & Sellers
Sale Every Mon., Wed., & Fri. Thereafter

Joe Irvin	Odan	Crisco
Lancaster Leaf	BS Beiler	Terry
Mac Bailey	Winstead

RECEIVING DATES: 11/30 & 12/1: 8-3; 12/2; 8-12

These buyers will get a percentage of the tobacco according to the amount they bought over 3-5 year average at auction. Tobacco will be divided out as such.

Remember, there is only 100% of the tobacco offered. What will the buyer do to get more tobacco?
1 - raise the price at auction, or
2 - buy on the farm
If the buyer buys on the farm he will tell the farmer that there's no commission to warehouse and that his price will be the same as at the auction. But, what will the on-farm buyer pay for low grade? If the buyer docks you on a 800 lb. skid - it could pay the commission for your whole crop selling at auction.

We like all buyers to buy at auction - we need your tobacco. We need a full warehouse first sale
Please color grade
• Put bright tobacco in one grade
• Put tips in one grade
• Put ground leaves in one grade

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

NOV. 27 - DEC. 3, 1995

FIRST QUARTER MOON, NOV. 29.

BE PREPARED FOR CHRISTMAS

The first Sunday in Advent, on December 3, is a "movable feast." It is a period of preparation for Christmas that always begins on the Sunday closest to St. Andrew's Day (November 30) and lasts until Christmas. Advent is, literally, "coming" in Latin, in this case, the coming of Jesus. In the Roman Catholic Church it is also a period of fasting. More generally, it is seen as a season of penitence in preparation for the holy day. Its liturgical color is purple. St. Andrew is usually depicted as an old man with a long white beard, leaning on his cross and carrying the Gospel.

— German proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

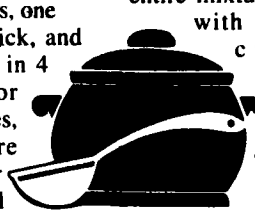
HOT CRANBERRY PUNCH

5 cups cranberries
cinnamon sticks (1 or more)
6 cloves
6 allspice
2 cups sugar
1 cup orange juice
1-1/2 tablespoons lemon juice

Boil cranberries, one cinnamon stick, and other spices in 4 cups water for about 10 minutes, until berries are bursting. Pour cranberries and juice through a strainer to remove seeds and tough pulp. Boil sugar in 2 cups of water for 5 minutes. Mix sugar water with strained cranberry juice, orange juice, and lemon juice. Boil the entire mixture, and serve with additional cinnamon sticks or an orange slice stuck with whole cloves.



Makes 2 quarts.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Sound traveling far and wide
A stormy day will betide.

If owls screech in foul weather, it will change to fair.

When grouse drum at night, there will be a deep fall of snow.

Special Offer. Handy chart full of interesting weather proverbs. Send $3 to Weather Chart, Dept UF, The Old Farmer's Almanac, Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444

OPINION

Beating NAFTA

A friend in the livestock business sent us a copy of Pat Goggins' column in the October issue of the Western Livestock Reporter out of Billings, Montana, that contains very disturbing facts about why cattle prices are so low in this country.

Goggins reports that an entrepreneur in Mexico bought cattle in Central and South America for $50 a head, shipped them into Mexico to rest for a few days or weeks, and then sent them on into the U.S. for $350 to $400 per head. This is illegal under the terms of NAFTA, but apparently authorities do not have a way to check the real point of origin of the cattle.

Another way Mexicans beat NAFTA is to disperse their herds in the U.S. and replace them with $50 cattle out of Central and South America. This is probably legal as long as it is not done on an annual basis.

Since Central and South America have multi-millions of livestock but very poor markets, we are sure that if they can, they will find a market in the U.S. Since many countries have no brand laws or cattle identification systems, they are in a position to move cattle north where they can find U.S markets. This may be good for the dealers and packers, but it certainly doesn't help the beef farmers and dairymen with cull cows for sale.

Now Is The Time

To Change Aging Antifreeze

Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, reminds us: do not expect your car to brave the winter with antifreeze that is more than two years old.

Ethylene glycol antifreeze is called permanent antifreeze because it will not boil away at normal engine temperatures. However, that does not mean the solution retains all of its good qualities forever.

Antifreeze contains additives to inhibit rust and corrosion, resist foaming, and conduct heat readily. After one or two winters, these additives usually are depleted.

If you plan to use the same antifreeze a second year, add a can of rust inhibitor and a can of water pump lubricant to the cooling system to replenish the depleted additives. When you change the antifreeze, use a mixture containing 50 percent water and 50 percent antifreeze. This will lower the freezing point to -34 degrees F. and raise the boiling point to 266 degrees F.

A solution containing more than 70 percent antifreeze will raise the freezing point. Antifreeze that is not mixed with water will freeze at -9 degrees F.

To Change Antifreeze Properly

To change antifreeze, first flush the cooling system with clean water for about 15 minutes. Leave the engine running. This flushing removes scale and soft deposits that tend to obstruct the flow of coolant in the system.

Commercial products are available to use in flushing cooling systems. These products will loosen and remove some harder deposits in the cooling system.

Before adding the new antifreeze mixture, check the radiator hoses and heater hoses for cracks, bulges, or suspicious-looking spots. Replace the hoses as needed.

Remember, antifreeze is poisonous to humans and pets. It has a sweet taste to animals and they will readily drink it. Therefore, be sure to keep pets away from antifreeze containers and antifreeze draining from radiators. Make sure to dispose of old antifreeze in a proper manner.

To Develop Christmas List

With Christmas about a month away, many of us are developing our Christmas lists. Some items you may want to consider are safety items.

An air helmet to wear in dusty conditions would be an excellent present. It will give you better working conditions and improve performance while protecting your lungs.

Smoke alarms, protective clothing, respirators, eye protection, gloves, and ear plugs are items every farmer should own and use. So personal safety protection items make excellent gift suggests for your spouse and children.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "Work toward the best that is possible within your power."

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

In the Lancaster Farming November 4, 1995 issue on the front page I read that "Penn State Strives To Get Handle on Flies." They are going in the right direction. As a suggestion, what's needed is to study ways to make the poultry, turkey, and swine housing operations cooler so that there isn't big losses when the summer time temperature gets 100 degrees that cause big looses. I read where a turkey farmer in Illinois had 3,000 dead turkeys in the heat causing $25,000 loss. A neighbor had only a $500 loss and another neighbor to the west $550,000 and another, almost $100,000. This made problems disposing of dead birds.

Today's modern ways and educated engineers should be able to design housing with cooler temperatures during hot summer months. Lancaster Farming had pictures of inside operations of latest ideas in swine, poultry, and turkey buildings and equipment with outside areas. No signs of wind breaks or any barriers to shade off the hot summer sun.

A few years ago, PA Farmer Magazine had a write-up about a quick growing willows for screens, and shelters that grow four feet the first year and the second year putting on about 20 feet. Man designs ways to go to the moon. Surely, something could be designed to make poultry housing cooler so there would not be big looses.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

TO USE OR TO BE USED
November 26, 1995

TO USE OR TO BE USED
November 26, 1995

Background Scripture:
Acts 18:18 through 19:41
Devotional Reading:
Acts 18:18-28

One of our besetting sins is the almost unconscious temptation to use God for our own purposes instead of being used by him for his. We want him to make us well, affluent, successful, and powerful and much of our prayer life is devoted to giving him a shopping list of what we want.

I realize that there is a fine line between asking God for his help and using him. Jesus certainly promised us that God is concerned with even our least important needs and desires and the New Testament again and again encourages to make them known to the Lord. But when the relationship with God is cultivated primarily for what we want to get from him, then we are simply trying to use God.

The world is not divided into those who try to use God and those who don't. Actually, probably all of us try to use him at some time or other for our own power or profit. That's why I called it an "almost unconscious temptation." Most of us, if we realized we were trying to use God, would back off. We know better than that. But often we deceive ourselves into thinking that, in seeking what we want, we are really seeking what God wants.

SELFISH INVOCATIONS

In one of his books, theologian Reinhold Niebuhr, quotes John Adams' warnings to Thomas Jefferson: "Power always thinks it has a great soul and vast views beyond the comprehension of the weak; and that it is doing God's service when it is violating all His laws." That is why God's help is invoked in some of the most selfish enterprises.

In Acts 19, we are told that "God did extraordinary miracles by the hand of Paul" while he was in Ephesus. Seven sons of a high priest named Sceva decided they wanted to have the same power and they began to practice the exorcism of evil spirits. "But the evil spirit answered them, 'Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are you?' And the man in whom the evil spirit was leaped on them, mastered all of them, and overpowered them, so that they fled out of that house wounded and naked" (19:15,16).

I'm sure that the sons of Sceva justified themselves in saying they were only trying to help these poor souls in torment. But it was not helping others that motivated them; they sought the power of God for their own purposes. And what happened to them graphically illustrates what happens to all of those who seek to use God's power rather than be used by it: eventually the power masters and overthrows us.

THE DOOR TO POWER

Paul did not seek God's power, but God poured it into his life to accomplish his divine purposes. The late Halford Luccock, a renowned seminary professor and author, once wrote that "God gives power only to men who need it. He does not waste power. He gives it to those who have tackled something so big, so overwhelming, that their own resources are quite insufficient." Luccock said that, when we tackle a task that is too big for us, it opens "the door through which there comes the rushing of a mighty wind of the spirit."

This is what we find in Acts 19. Paul, responding to God's leading, tackles a job too big for him and, when he offers himself to God's purpose, that opens the door through which the Holy Spirit rushes into his ministry. Paul didn't ask for it, but because he offered himself, "God did extraordinary miracles" by his hands.

From Paul's letters we see that throughout his life in Christ, he consistently brought his needs and wants to God in prayer. But his overriding concern was not to use God for his own purposes, but to be used by him for the sake of the gospel. In our own relationship with God, we need aim no higher than that.

"Many growers want to double crop, and I can understand why You get two paychecks from one field But managed properly, 7484 is one of the best long-season beans on the market It has fast emergence and good vigor, and is no-till adaptable You should get at least 60 Bu/A, perhaps even 75 And with the heat stress we had last year, the 7484 soybeans are what saved us"

Whether it's full-season or double-crop, 7484 is a performance leader, beating the average yield by 9% in field trials throughout the region It emerges fast and produces a good canopy 7484 is especially recommended for Delmarva and Virginia farmers

Check out our full line of top performing soybeans by calling Hoffman Seeds at 1-800-776-7929 Let us show you how we can add value to your seed investment

Poly SQUARE
CALF NURSERY
#1 In Sales World-Wide

TMR MIXERS

Poly Square Means Healthier Cows

The Poly Square Big Foot is constructed of Opaque material to eliminate the solar effect. It blocks out sunheat-not sunlight. Poly Square's inverted ribs and 5'(W)x7'6"(L) make it the biggest unit on the market today and extremely wind resistant. It has no pop rivets-which means no breaks or cracks for snow and rain to sift in. The unit weighs 100 pounds plus manger & buckets. And Poly Square Big Foot is large enough so your calf can lay in the center, away from cold walls in the winter. Use Poly Square with our side feed station and bottle holder which is perfect for use with a fence in a more traditional setting.

New Side Hay Feeder—Made especially for Poly Square Big Foot, no other unit has this feature. Also has a center roof vent for better air movement.

"Most years, I get five cuttings with Attainer That's 9 to 10 tons of hay per acre, so I make twice as much on alfalfa as any other crop Attainer doesn't harden down as fast as other varieties, so you have a longer time to cut it in its most digestible form With Attainer, my cutting time is more flexible than other varieties

"I like to grow alfalfa The day I need to cut it, I'm there You won't get five cuttings a year if you're not I do what it needs when it needs it And apparently it works I can sell my alfalfa anytime People want to buy it because they say their cows milk well on it"

In field trials, Attainer produced 16,200 lbs of milk/acre Its large harvest window guarantees that you'll receive maximum feed value Plus Attainer is highly resistant to all major alfalfa diseases Attainer is just one of the alfalfas in our top producing lineup — a lineup that now includes W-L alfalfas

"Our area is notorious for hot dry spells, and 4672 has stood the stress, year after year. It holds up well under the heat, and that's one of the reasons we continue to use it. We especially like the stalk and root strength — no green snap.

"In addition, we can always market it without dockage — the test weight and grain quality always produces an excellent sample."

Producing big yields in a variety of environments is the clear strength of 4672. It has superior stalk quality, and excellent stress tolerance. A 118-day hybrid, it does well in light, medium or heavy soils.

PSEUDORABIES STATUS TODAY

Dr. Larry Hutchinson
Extension Veterinarian
Penn State University

For the past 15 years, Pennsylvania pork producers, particularly those in Lancaster County, have been struggling with an elusive viral disease — pseudorabies (PRV). A decade ago, the tools to cope with PRV were inadequate, and the pork producers across the U.S. were uncertain whether eradication of the disease could be accomplished, and if it could, was it worth the effort?

Pseudorabies can cause abortion, stillbirths, baby pig losses and respiratory disease in pigs, but it also can be present in a herd with no disease signs and only modest effects on herd productivity. Some producers felt that control and eradication efforts were costing more than living with the disease.

Today there is broad agreement across the U.S. that PRV can, and will be, eradicated from the U.S. The goal is to eliminate PRV by the end of the year 2000.

Greater knowledge about the disease, coupled with new tools such as gene-deleted vaccines and blood tests that differentiate vaccine-strain from disease-strain antibodies have helped propel the cleanup program forward.

Tremendous progress has been made in the past few years. This progress is measured by number of quarantined herds and the status of each state in a five-stage, pork producer-directed eradication plan in which Stage I is the preparatory stage and Stage V is PRV-free. Most states are now in the III, IV, or V. Several of the major pork-producing states, particularly Iowa, still have quite a few quarantined herds, but total number of herds is dropping steadily (declining by 27 percent in the past year).

Pennsylvania has 54 herds under quarantine and is in stage II of the national program. All states surrounding Pennsylvania are in a higher PRV program, providing an incentive for Pennsylvania to move into Stage III to help protect our markets for both breeding stock and feeder pigs.

State	PRV Program Stage	Quarantined Herds
PA	II	54

For Pennsylvania to move from Stage II to Stage III, the number of quarantined herds must not exceed 1 percent of the total number of herds in the state. That requirement was recently met. A change in state department of agriculture regulations is necessary to allow mandatory cleanup of infected herds.

These rule changes have been written and public comment invited. It seems likely that Pennsylvania will move into Stage III early in 1996 and should be able to proceed to PRV-free state within the next two years.

Cleaning up pseudorabies will be a great relief to the pork industry, both to the quarantined herds and to those producers who want to avoid exposure to the disease.

We're not there yet, but the end is in sight!

Learn To Control Birds, Rodents In Dairy Farms

RACINE, Wis.—Donald G. Livengood of C.B. Hoober & Son in Intercourse, Pa., recently completed a one-week training program on servicing Case IH 2100 Series Axial-Flow® combines.

The program is one of 23 different courses of technical study offered throughout the year for Case IH and Case service personnel at three dedicated training centers in North America.

This year, nearly 3,000 people will complete one or more of the week-long technical sessions, which combine hands-on and classroom training to make sure dealership technicians are familiar with the latest methods for fast, accurate diagnostics and service.

Combine hydraulics/electrical, the session Livengood attended at the Case Corporation Service Training Center in Racine, provides a comprehensive review of hydraulic, electronic and electrical systems and components featured in the 2100 Series Axial-Flow combines. Special testing, adjustment and calibration procedures are studied with emphasis on troubleshooting. Attendees are given extensive opportunity to disassemble, inspect and rebuild components.

"We recognize a customer's need for total product support," said Arnie Oelkers, Case Corporation manager, North American service training. "Our training program helps Case IH dealers provide the best service possible in terms of technical proficiency and professionalism."

Toward that end, Oelkers noted that skill-level profiles are developed at the start of each training session to determine the current level of technical product knowledge for every attendee. Among other things, the skill-level profile provides an evaluation of the technician's improvement and an opportunity for feedback to the dealership.

Technicians Train

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Three Pa.DHIA technicians recently completed a field training seminar in State College.

The seminar involved five days of in-depth study.

Prior to this seminar, each technician received their initial training. By the time technicians receive the in-depth training of the seminar, they have approximately two to four months of prior training and experience.

The three who recently completed their advanced training were Ross Grooms from Armstrong County, Mary Schmidt from Crawford County, and Troy Liddick, of Dauphin County.

Quality certification through National DHIA requires that proper training be documented for the inspector's viewing.

Each year, Pa.DHIA holds spring, summer and fall conferences to constantly update all technicians on any changes and new programs. Mini-conferences are held in each county on a bimonthly basis to answer any questions or address concerns.

Please feel free to contact Pa.DHIA at 800-344-8378 if we can assist with your dairy operation.

Lancaster County — The Next Los Angeles?

The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry agriculture committee along with the Lancaster Farm and Home Foundation will hold a "Town Meeting" on Thursday, December 7, from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Farm and Home Center. The focus of the program is "Lancaster County—The Next Los Angeles?"

Preserving the viability and sustainability of agriculture is a top priority of many organizations in Lancaster County, but at the same time there exists an accelerating change of properties to non-agriculture land uses. This is a trend similar to growth patterns in such areas as Orange County, CA, and Cook County, IL—which now boast very little agriculture.

The meeting format will include 10-15 minute presentations from representatives of the business community, farming community, planning commission, and the tourist industry. This will be followed by a panel discussion on public policy and keeping agriculture strong in Lancaster County.

Presenters include Ron Bailey, Lancaster County Planning Commission; Harry Flick, Pennsylvania Dutch Convention and Visitors Bureau; Darvin Boyd, CoreStates Hamilton Bank; and Dale Hershey, dairy farmer. Panelists include Nelson Rohrer, Manheim Township Board of Commissioners; Terry Kauffman, Lancaster County Commissioner; John Barley, Pennsylvania House of Representatives, 100th legislative district; and Noah Wenger, Pennsylvania Senate, 36th legislative district.

Following the panel discussion will be an open forum for questions and discussion, moderated by Jim Shirk, the Chamber's agriculture services manager.

The town meeting is open to the public, free of charge. For more information, contact Jim Shirk at 397-3531.

National Grange In Harrisburg Adopts Policy, Elects Officers

lowering the likelihood that local agrarian enterprise could effectively compete with other capitalistic opportunities for control of the land and other resources.

Adopts Policies

The Grange adopted policy it considers would protect private property rights, while at the same time help protect the environment and natural resources.

The policy calls for the "U.S. Constitition to be designated as the ultimate protector of private property," according to the press office of the National Grange.

At the same time, the Grange policy includes a recognition of the importance of protecting local watersheds.

For other environmental goals, the Grange has adopted the position that voluntary programs should be created which give local communities the say as to which resources are best managed through public agencies.

The Grange also adopted policy that would direct the use of public agricultural support toward the family farmer in an effort to provide a buffer against large corporate farms.

In this policy, the Grange calls for the use of "means testing" for all major commodities, full planting flexibility, and basing support payments on production, not acreage.

The National Grange also agreed to call upon the U.S. Congress to produce a tax system that is less complicated and more fair.

In their consideration of a variety of proposals for tax and fiscal policy, the delegates approved backing a tax system that would use a simpler and fairer federal income tax, such as a flat tax; reform of capital gains tax to allow a 50-percent deduction, coupled with a graduated note tied to higher income brackets; and reform of federal estate tax laws to exclude the first $1.5 milllion of qualified family business assets from estate taxes.

In related policy, the Grange spoke out against the concentration of economic power in the hands of large commercial banks.

Delegates adopted a position that opposes allowing large banks to buy insurance funds or sell securities.

The Grange seeks protections of the rights of parents to make decisions regarding the discipline and welfare of their children instead of having those rights taken over by legislative bodies and the judicial system.

The Grange delegate body also called for strong opposition to the ratification of the United Nation's Treaty on the Rights of the Child, because it "challenges parents' rights that are protected by the U.S. Constitition," said Maurice Wiles, chairman of the National Grange Committee on Foreign Affairs.

At the same time, the Grange delegate body endorsed the Parental Rights and Responsibilities Act of 1995 because it is seen as a protection of the rights of parents in the education and health care of the children, while protecting children from abuse and neglect.

Master's Address

In his opening speech to the delegates, Barrow, a member of the Grange of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry, said, "We cannot neglect the small to mid-size commercial farms.

"Until new programs are created, we must support means testing and directing program benefits to this class of farms.

"Throughout the debate on the 1995 Farm Bill, we have heard the (Clinton) Administration, lawmakers and other farm organizations say that any cut in farm commodity program benefits would be devastating to rural America," Barrow said.

"But since 1970, farming has become significantly less important as an economic factor in a majority of rural areas.

"Less than 12 percent of rural counties were farm-dependent by the end of the 1980s."

According to Barrow, as the number of farms has decreased, those counties still with farms are considered to be those counties where residents enjoy higher incomes and standards of living than most — the "have" counties.

"The government's farm program payments contribute almost nothing to income in poor rural counties," Barrow said. "In the upper income counties, nearly 10 percent of the income is derived from the government's farm payments as compared to only 2 percent in the poorer counties."

According to Barrow, he told both the U.S. Senate and House agriculture committees that an understanding of the current character of U.S. agriculture is order to create a Farm Bill that helps where help is needed.

"It is against today's demographics of rural America that we must consider farm plicy and rural development, not on what agriculture was, but on what agriculture is," he said.

He said he told Congress that means testing and making sure program payments go to small to mid-size commercial farms is essential.

In addition, he said that new programs have to ignore government classifications as "farm dependent" because it doesn't reflect the rural reality of need. There are 2,083 such counties. He said new programs have to be focused on providing help to those with need, not based upon government classifications about community economic structure.

In addition, Barrow said that for additional rural development, that industry related to agriculture must be promoted.

"We have suggested that the potential for increased growth in rural employment can be found by attracting industries related to agriculture, such as adding value to farm products or manufacturing new industrial uses for farm commodities," he said.

As a word of caution, he said that emphasizing agribusiness as a source of employment for rural economic development could be the same level of mistake made in support programs caused by overemphasizing the intensity of farming in a county.

According to a news release from the National Grange outlining his speech, Barrow said that those same counties currently receiving the bulk of government support are already financially well-off and most likely the coun-

Pennsylvania State Grange Master Gordon Hiller presents a hand-made patriotic tie to state Gov. Tom Ridge. All men from the Pennsylvania host state wore the same tie pattern made special for the 129th national convention.

"But that does not mean that we should abandon our efforts to locate such industries in farm-dependent rural counties. Labor is mobile, and counties with large farms and high farm income do not have a large pool of unemployed or under-employed workers.

"Therefore, ag-related industries that are located in these counties can attract labor from adjacent and nearby counties.

"Effective strategies for improving the economies of our rural counties must be based on a true assessment of economic strengths and weaknesses, including the labor pool, transportation, health care, and building and maintaining educational facilities."

Gov. Ridge Welcomes

In some opening remarks to the Grange, state Gov. Tom Ridge talked about what he sees as important to the growth of rural America and Pennsylvania.

He commended the Grange for being an organization of people who share a common interest in rural America despite diverse geographies, backgrounds and interests.

A desire to work together and projecting a unified voice are also the strengths of Grange members, he said.

Ridge told the group of Grangers that he is proud that the Pennsylvania State Grange is part of the National Grange's unified voice, "... a voice herd in state houses across the country and in Washington D.C. — a single voice that shares a vision for rural America's future."

Talking specifically about Pennsylvania, Ridge said that Pennsylvania has the largest rural population of any state in the nation and that, "It is in our best interest to keep these rural communities viable in the ever-expanding, ever-competitive world."

According to Ridge, agriculture is "intimately linked to the vitality of our agricultural industry" and thus, what is good for agriculture is good for rural Pennsylvania.

Ridge quoted an excerpt from Ralph Waldo Emerson:

"The first farmer was the first man, and all his historic nobility rests on possession and use of land.

"The glory of the farmer is that, in the division of labors, it is his part to create. All trade rests at last on his primitive activity."

Ridge followed that with, "Although primitive in history, agriculture has grown far beyond its humble beginnings. And yet, in agri-business's growth, so too have grown the number of challenges that confront our farmers and our rural communities."

He talked about the great changes to agriculture in practices and available technology, global competition, the lack of the public's agricultural education, and the financial incentives tempting those with land best suited for farming to sell to others seeking greater and faster returns through accommodating urban sprawl.

He said that now, more than ever before, America must "recommit ourselves to strengthen our rural communities."

Toward that purpose, Ridge said, "We must therefore seek new economic and technological opportunities to make it possible for our young people to stay on our farms and in our small towns.

"We must improve our educational opportunities to assure future generations have the basic skills they need to secure their personal success on the farm and in their home communities."

"And perhaps most of all ... we must work to get government our of the way."

Ridge said that the breaking up of the former state Department of

Environmental Resources into two different agencies and revising the agency missions from seeking enforcement to seeking compliance is an example of getting government out of the way.

But he also spoke about the federal level government and "overzealous environmental regulation."

"Perhaps there is no better example than the need to replace the outdated Delaney Clause, private property rights and the call for wetlands reform."

He said he has been working to create a better regulatory environment that assists residents in accomplishing their goals while preserving the environment.

He reiterated a number of points on issues that he has discussed in campaign speeches and those made since, promoting increasing the profitability of family farms through expanding export opportunities, supporting research and development of technology that provides a competitive edge, and to provide educational opportunities through school choice — not just public to private, but public to public.

He also called for greater local control of regulations affecting non-educational aspects of education, such as the number of trees on school grounds, the number of soap dishes in lavatories.

"It's time that state government gave them the power to meet local needs in the way they see fit — in a way that meets your communities' needs.

"The rewards could be great by removing mandatory sabbaticals alone. In Pennsylvania, on study shows that their (sabbaticals) elimination alone could save taxpayers $225 million."

In so many words, the governor said that what is needed is a change in government to allow rural Americans to regain their "can do" attitude and enthusiasm, instead of wallowing in the malaise that comes from government-imposed "must do" and "can't do."

Officers Elected

The National Grange elected its first female overseer, a position analogous to that of vice president.

Jeannne Davies, of the Colorado State Grange, was installed this week into that office, replacing outgoing Kermit Richardson, who moved up to succeed Barrow as national master (president).

Davies has received numerous state and national recognitions. She joined the Grange in 1951, she and her husband Miles were the 1964 National Grange Young Couple of the Year, she was elected master of the Colorado State Grange in 1981 and to the National Grange Executive Committee in 1986. She became secretary to the Executive Committee in 1991.

In community service, Davies was appointed by the governor of Colorado to several state advisory boards involving agriculture.

She was recognized as an organizing member and an officer of the "Always Buy Colorado" marketing committee. She is an officer of the Denver Agriculture and Livestock Club, and the Council of Agricultural Lobbyists.

She was inducted into the Colorado Agriculture Hall of Fame in 1993, and in 1994 she was appointed by the U.S. secretary of agriculture and the U.S. trade representative to serve as a member of the Agriculture Policy and Advisory Committee.

"Being elected overseer to the National Grange is an exciting challenge that I welcome," she said. "It's a natural extension of the work I've been doing with the Grange. I look forward to working with all Grangers."

Richardson, of Orange, Vt., has been a member of Grange since he was 14, holding a variety of local, state and national offices. In 1971, he was elected national chaplain. In 1975 he was national lecturer (program director) and held that until being elected overseer in 1985.

He has been serving as town moderator for Organe since 1960, was director of the Organge School from 1961 to 1973. Currently, he is director of Farmers and Traders Life Insurance Company.

He is also a member of the Windsor County Board of Realtors, past director of the Independent Mutual Agents of New England, and is a member of the Masons.

"I want to thank the National Grange delegates for their support and confidence in electing me their new national master," he said. "This is an exciting time to be involved with the Grange because of our strong stance in agriculture and family values."

Awards, Other

The winning members from each of the 37 states were forwarded for consideration by a judging panel.

Judging was based on how well organized the work was, how well the project addressed community needs, public needs, how innovative and labor-intensive the project was, how well it promoted environmental awareness, how well it promoted the Grange, was a socially useful idea and provided real long-term value, and was a clear and complete presentation.

Edneyville Grange No. 1051 in North Carolina garnered first place honors for its work to save an abandoned school building and turn it into a law enforcement academy. They used grassroots lobbying efforts to organize local citizens, city and county officials and state lawmakers to work together for the academy.

Others recognized included Riverside Grange No. 455 in Vermont for addressing an increasing number of burglaries and acts of vandalism in the community; Golden Gate Grange No. 451, in Colorado for installing 65 cisterns throughout wildnerss areas to help battle wild fires; and the Happy Camp Grange No. 395 for the efforts of 75 workers for planting two acres of lawn at a community park.

District Has Resources

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Several breeds and types of horses are used in a wide variety of activities throughout Chester County and Pennsylvania.

Regardless of whether you own one horse or many horses, the decisions you make on your property can have a significant impact on water quality.

The goal of a water quality management plan is to reduce runoff and protect groundwater. Runoff from horse farms can carry soil and waste contaminants into waterways, creating a nonpoint source of pollution.

Reducing runoff and contamination can be accomplished by the combination of nutrient management, watercourse and runoff controls, pasture management, and streambank protection.

The Chester County Conservation District has resources available for county residents interested in farmstead stewardship. These include valuable information regarding environmentally responsible components of a well managed equine operation.

By providing information and technical assistance, the district can help solve nutrient management challenges unique to your farm.

The district has available a six-page brochure entitled "More Horse Than You Can Handle" (Farmstead Stewardship: Guidelines For Horse Owners). For a copy of this publication or to have a nutrient management plan developed for your farm, contact the Chester County Conservation District at (610) 696-5126, Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

THANKSGIVING MEANS 'GIVING THANKS' FOR OPPORTUNITIES

During the fall season, as daylight shortens and the overshadowing darkness tends to shorten daily outdoor events, we have an excellent opportunity to reflect on our good fortunes and blessings — an opportunity that is enhanced by the coming and passing of Thanksgiving.

The origin of the Thanksgiving celebration, bountiful harvest, and "giving thanks" is well-known. But in the modern world, with all of the technological advances and convenient methods that make our lives easier and sometimes more hectic, we have a lot for which to be thankful. Even with the outlandish pace of life, we should slow our activities enough to quietly ask ourselves:

For what are we truly thankful?

I am thankful for the opportunity to live in a country where animal agriculture is so vitally important and recognized as such. Important not simply because it provides a means for the livelihood of individuals; but more importantly, it provides for our collective sustenance.

Stockmen and farmers, for your earnest diligence in providing a bountiful harvest of food, I give you my thanks.

I am thankful for the opportunity to interact with others who have similar interests and to display for comparison what we have raised. The competition among livestock enthusiasts fosters a desire to achieve the best and provide the best through continual improvement.

Peers, judges and competitors, for forcing us to continually improve upon what we raise and produce, and to display our best at all times, I give you my thanks.

I am thankful for the opportunity to participate in junior livestock programs and to be guided by individuals who give freely of their time and resources.

They believe in junior livestock programs and the benefits garnered by everyone involved, and are competent, enthusiastic people who can provide the important wisdom, vision, energy, and resources to ensure that these programs continue.

Volunteer leaders, county agents and vo-ag instructors, for giving unselfishly of your time, energy, and enthusiasm, I give you my thanks.

I am thankful for the opportunity to be part of a family. Some of the most rivaled competition, heart-breaking and heart-warming learning experiences, compassion, understanding and cooperation was felt, had and learned from my siblings.

For parents who have provided us with the challenges and opportunities to experience by doing, succeed by doing, fail by doing, and learn by doing, in a forum that focuses on the special bonds among humans working with humans and animals.

Family, for your comfort, assurances, undying competitive spirit, resources, friendship, and above all else, your love, I give you my thanks.

I am thankful for the opportunity to experience the wonderful bounties, majestic sights, and unparalleled miracles of life. Lord, for all you have provided, I give you my thanks.

Melvin Wenger, 82, founder of Wenger Feeds, Rheems, began his business career upon graduation in 1935 with a grocery store in Elizabethtown and became one of the first to offer self- service. With this background, in 1944, Wenger bought a feed mill and in 1962 built one of the first egg layer complexes.

Over the years, the business grew, and today a son and three sons-in-law, along with more than 200 employees, manufacture bulk feed with emphasis on the egg layer business. Wenger's lifetime support of agriculture was recognized by the presentation of the Delp award.

John Schwartz, director, Lancaster County extension service, introduced the 125th and 126th century farms in the county.

The Woerth farm, located at Nickel Mines in Bart Twp. is owned by Hazel Woerth. This 46.6 acre farm was purchased by George Woerth, Mrs. Woerth's father-in-law, in 1895. The log and stone house on the farm was built in 1758.

The Nissley farm, located near Mount Joy, was purchased by Samuel Nissley in 1795, making it a bicentennial farm. The current owners, Darwin and Bernard Nissley, purchased the 150 acre cattle farm from their father John in 1993. Two-hundred years ago records show that the farm was purchased for $41.92 per acre.

Dr. David Kohl, professor of ag finance and small business and entrepreneurship at Virginia Polytech, gave the keynote address.

"We do a lot of bellyaching in this country. And we have some of the largest bellies to bellyache, with the least to bellyache about in the world."—Dr. David Kohl

He said that to manage the changes in agriculture, farmers needed to not only look for profit, they need to also manage prosperity.

"We need to market the benefits of agriculture," Kohl said. "The people would not have all the other things if they had to spend more for food. In reality, the average family spends only 10 to 12 percent of their income for food. That's down from 19 percent in 1979."

As a university professor, Kohl said that one-third of his students did not need to be in college. "We are pushing our kids into college too fast," he said. "We need to encourage vocational and technical schools because if you look at the next century, only 28 percent of all jobs will need a college degree. You will need to look for a lifetime education to be competitive and to succeed.

"Make sure you share and teach as part of your business or you will end up destroying your business. Bring young people in earlier. Manage your time. Don't spend too much time on the job, or your health will go, both physical and mental health; your business will go down and your family will go down. There is nothing like seeing a family succeed. You can measure your success through your family.

"We honor the people who supply us with the bounty of food and with the bounty of employment. We do a lot of bellyaching in this country. And we have some of the largest bellies to bellyache, with the least to bellyache about in the world. The message we need to tell is: we have a very efficient agriculture."

Maryland Dairy Producers Increasing Production Per Farm

COLLEGEPARK, Md.—"Even though the dairy industry has had a setback in this state, seven of Maryland's Piedmont counties have been able to hold their own and show an increase in production recently," said Dr. John W. Wysong, cooperative Extension agricultural economist with the University of Maryland at College Park.

Those seven counties—Frederick, Washington, Carroll, Baltimore, Harford, Howard and Montgomery—have increased their share of the state's milk production from 80 to 83 percent between 1980 and 1994. Wysong said their continued concentration on milk production is surprising because of conversion of farmland into non-farm areas or non-dairy farms over the past decade and a half.

Even though the share of milk production increased, total milk output declined slightly from 1.147 billion pounds in 1980 to 1.031 billion pounds in 1994. Wysong attributed this decline to the spread of urban prosperity into rural farm areas and the federal dairy herd buy-out program in 1986 and 1987.

Although not considered a Piedmont county, Garrett County has expanded production from 1980 to 1994. That county ranked fourth in total cows and milk production—behind Frederick, Washington and Carroll counties—in 1994. Those top three counties alone produce 65 percent of the milk in Maryland.

The upper Eastern Shore, including Kent, Cecil and Queen Anne's counties, is another significant area of milk production in Maryland. Caroline and Talbot counties have experienced drops in milk output over the last 15 years because of urbanization and the concentration on soybeans, field corn and broiler and egg production.

According to the Middle Atlantic Market Administrator's Bulletin, Maryland has lost 52 dairy farms since July 1994. The remaining farms have increased the state's milk production from 95,351,000 pounds in July 1994 to 96,580,000 pounds in July 1995. Pennsylvania ranks ahead of Maryland in the Mid-Atlantic region, producing 333,050,000 pounds of milk in July.

"Because of the Cooperative Extension Service, the Agricultural Experiment Station and the research and support from the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, dairy farms have been able to compete fairly well and keep the dairy industry prominent in Maryland during the past 15 years," said Wysong. "Gains in milk production and marketing efficiencies have enabled Maryland consumers to attain dairy products at reasonable retail or consumer level prices."

Penn State Block and Bridle Club

NOTES FROM THE PENN STATE BLOCK AND BRIDLE CLUB

This monthly feature to Lancaster Farming is provided by members of the Penn State Block and Bridle Club for B&B alumni, friends of the Department of Dairy and Animal Science, and the readership of Lancaster Farming.

Last month, club members assisted with the Keystone International Livestock Exposition livestock judging contest. At the regular meeting held on Oct. 5, the club finalized plans for the national meeting and the start of the fall sausage sale.

The annual B&B fall meat sale was expanded to include three items: pork sausage and two sizes of beef summer sausage. The incentives for this fall's sale, include dinner for the winning team of five and complimentary tickets to the Christmas semiformal for the two high salespersons.

On Saturday, Oct. 21, a few Executive Committee members discussed B&B programs and undergraduate student life with juniors and seniors in high school who were on campus for the annual Department of Dairy and Animal Science Open House for Prospective Students.

The club held a very successful and enjoyable Halloween Party on Oct. 28.

The "Halloween Barn Bash" featured a fresh, roasted pig, and hot, ham and bean soup, various other refreshments, and a D.J. Approximately 150 students and friends attended the annual social.

This month, members of the club left Thursday, Nov. 9 for the 76th annual National Block and Bridle Club meeting in Louisville, Ky., which was held through that Sunday. This year's national meeting was hosted by the University of Kentucky and was in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition.

The meeting was especially exciting for Penn State B&B members as the club's published annual yearbook (Little I catalog) placed first, and the scrapbook placed fifth. Our very own Dr. Harold Harpster was elected National B & B secretary.

The national meeting featured tours in the Louisville area, national competitions, social events, seminars, and an opportunity to visit with other students from across the country.

New members were formally initiated into the Penn State Chapter of the National Block and Bridle Club at our meeting on Nov. 16. Our intramural teams are working on a very good record in football. Plans are under way for the 79th Little International to be held on Saturday, April 13, 1996. This year's show is under the supervision of Kristen Hazlett (show manager) and Jen Garman (assistant show manager).

Also, the fall meat sale looks like it will be a tremendous fundraiser for the club, and the sping sale probably will feature a new product!

We will be be sending out and delivering the beef summer sausage and fresh pork sausage the week of Nov. 20, so everyone should have their delicious fixin's for Thanksgiving.

Next month, plans are being finalized for the annual Block & Bridle/Dairy Science Club Christmas Semiformal. This year the festivities will be held at the Holiday Inn, State College.

The semiformal gives everyone a chance to relax and unwind before starting on final exams the following week. All seniors graduating in December will be able to give their farewells to the club at our last meeting of the semester on Nov. 30.

Many Foreign Trade Representatives Have Already Agreed To Attend

International Day At Pennsylvania Farm Show Announced

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — You can expect an influx of foreign trade delegations at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January. These visitors are comming at the invitation of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) as an outgrowth of the stated goals of Gov. Tom Ridge and Ag Sec. Charles Brosius that the market for Pennsylvania's agricultural products should be expanded by exports.

Specifically, Saturday, January 6, 1996, the day Gov. Ridge tours the farm show and presides over the the official opening, has, for the first time, been designated "International Day." Frank DeGarcia, chairman of the milk marketing board, and Dave McCorkle, executive secretary, PA Food Merchants Association are heading the committee to bring everything together. DeGarcia reported at the regular meeting of the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations Monday.

To date, 23 countries have agreed to send 66 dignitaries to the farm show. This includes 12 foreign ambassadors, ministers, and business persons. Trade delegations from China, the Dominican Republic, Korea, and Mexico will spend the week here. In addition to official receptions, banquets, and farm show tours, foreign visitors with special interests will meet with agribusiness establishments in other parts of Pennsylvania.

"I have traveled over the world," DeGarcia said. "And Pennsylvania is a little jewery box hidden. Anytime I bring someone here from overseas he cannot believe what we have to offer. We have just never marketed our agriculture to the world. When they think of Pennsylvania, they think of Philadelphia."

DeGarcia said we have an international exposition of farm machinery and livestock at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. But it's hard to describe what we have in a foreign language. The translation does not give full credit to what is taking place at the farm show. For example, in Mexico they think the U.S. ends with Texas. They don't realize Pennsylvania has a port and can ship and receive goods without the use of a broker in Texas that charges a 20 percent commission. In addition to feed, Holstein cows, and sheep they are also interested in technology and the exchange of ideas and students.

"We have a good start on this project," DeGarcia said. "Many people are working together to pull it off. The industry is cooperating fully with us, and we want everybody to participate. I can't think of any time in the 34 years that I have been in Harrisburg that we have had so many nations here at the same time to look at ag agriculture. Since industry is participating so well, if everything goes as planned, we will pull this off with very little state money."

For businesses that would like to participate or learn more about the opportunities they can get in touch with PDA. In addition, companies with booths at the show should be prepared to supply information to the foreign visitors as they visit the exhibits.

"This year we are going to build the structure for International Day at the farm show. And next year, we will then be able to do an even better job," DeGarcia said.

Lancaster County Holstein Club Reviews Year

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Holstein Club held its 45th annual banquet Tuesday at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville.

The club meets annually to review club business, elect officers and to present awards. Jack Coleman presided.

Speakers included Kenneth Raney, representative for the state association, Clarence Stauffer, representing Holstein Association USA, and club officers.

In elections for director, Lowell Brubaker, of Manheim, was selected to serve a two-year term, while Rick Hess, of Lancaster, Larry Kennel, of Mount Joy, and Gerald Risser, of Bambridge, were selected to serve full-length terms.

It was announced that the club has a barn meeting scheduled to be held 7:30 p.m., Dec. 4, at the Masonic Home Farms. The topic is to be bird and rodent control, but the farm was also recently remodeled and will be open for a tour.

Those who attend the meeting can qualify for pesticide credits.

In his address, Raney reviewed the services of the organization, reminding members that those who renew memberships by Dec. 1 receive a $5 discount, while those who renew by mid-January qualify their local club for a $2 rebate from the state organization.

He also talked about the fact that Pa. Holstein has been marketing cattle for export. He said they are currently getting an order together for a sale to Saudi Arabia.

Raney said the registered heifers should be from dams averaging at least 17,000 pounds milk, and pregnant three to seven months.

He said that breeders may also be interested in tentative orders for bred heifers about mid-spring.

Further, he said that anyone looking for good registered or grade Holsteins should contact the association.

Stauffer reviewed the national organization's identification options, the fact that prices have been reduced for registering older bulls, and that many prices have been reduced because the organization has realized a sufficient amount of investment income to cover the losses from the lower service fees to members.

John Howard, county club member and a national director, reviewed the national finances, and discussed other services and offerings available through the national organization.

In the club's Distinguished Junior Member contest, Leslie Howard was the winner and received a show box. In the intermediate age class Jeremy Meck was the winner and won a show calf donated by Welk-Shade Acres.

Meck's new calf, Welk-Shade A.J. Delight, is an Astro Jet daughter out of an Ultimate dam.

The calf was donated by Welk-Shade Acres to support the Lancaster County Holstein Club's annual distinguished junior member contest. Each year the club presents a show calf to the intermediate-aged youth member who wins the club's distinguished junior member contest.

In other production awards, Spring-Lawn Farm's Target GE—PO was first junior 2-year-old in all three catagories with 29,218 pounds milk, 1,030 pounds fat, and 849 pounds of protein.

They also had the highest milk producing senior 2-year-old, Spring-Lawn Deputy Latsy with 30,923 pounds of milk

Vern and Lois Umble had the senior 2-year-old with the highest production, Maril-Dale Cleitus Caroline with 1,234 pounds of fat and 910 pounds of protein.

Stark Rock Farm had the highest producing junior and senior 3-year-olds. Its junior 3-year-old Gaywell B Aerostar made 34,002 pounds of milk, 1,239 pounds of fat and 984 pounds of protein.

Its Musser Frandale Dingo Betty made 42,467 pounds of milk, 2,055 pounds of fat, and 1,234 pounds of protein.

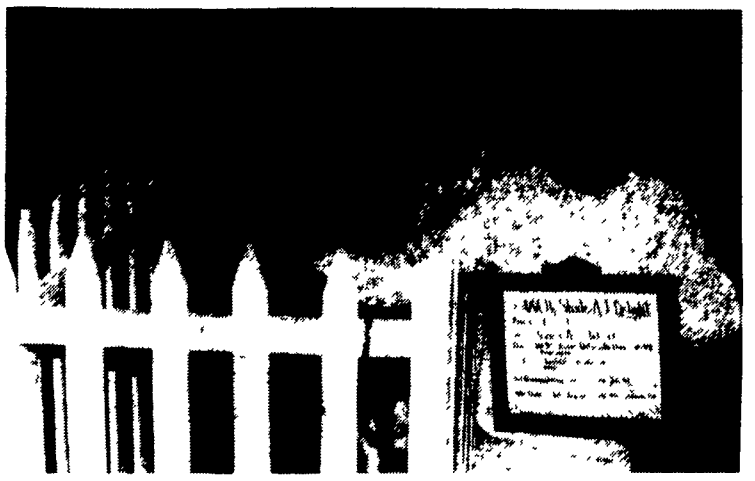
The top butterfat and protein producing 4-year-old was Rayside Tesk Valiant Kim, owned by Glenda Farms, with 1,141 pounds of fat, 1,048 pounds of protein.

The top senior aged cow for milk production was Ken Zurin's Kenbum Daydream Rosita with 37,333 pounds.

Star Rock Farm had the highest fat and protein producing aged cow with its Russeldale Count Casey making 1,441 pounds fat and 965 pounds protein.



Jeremy Meck holds the halter of his new calf, Welk-Shade A.J. Delight, an Astro Jet daughter out of an Ultimate dam. The calf was donated by Welk-Shade Acres to support the Lancaster County Holstein Club's annual distinguished junior member contest. Each year the club presents a show calf to the intermediate-aged youth member who wins the club's distinguished junior member contest.

Learn To Balance Present, Future Needs

BRUCE H. MOYER
Union County
Cooperative Extension
Agent

Balancing present and future needs is no easy task. It is a task made even more difficult when we are working with limited or finite resources.

We have all faced, at one time or another, the difficult decision of whether to use our limited resources today or to save them for some future need. The decision becomes even more difficult if it involves choices that will impact our children and grandchildren long after we are gone.

The same holds true for many decisions that are made by our government—be it local, state or national. With our finite natural resources, do we consume to satisfy today's needs or do we expend our resources in such a manner to meet the needs of future generations?

How much do we care about people whose lives won't begin until long after our own have ended? How much should we care about them?

These questions often come up when we contemplate environmental issues that benefit people who are separated by many years or even generations from those who pay the costs.

Locally this could involve decisions on the restoration of wetlands or waterways, recycling, the use of prime agricultural land for development, the storage of low-level radioactive waste, and many other very sensitive issues.

On the national level, it could involve decisions to limit carbon emissions or preservation of the ozone layer. Whether the best interests of both present and future generations are being equitably met with these decisions can, to some degree, be addressed on whether a dollar's worth of future benefits is worth less than a dollar's worth of present costs—what economists call discounting.

Discounting is the opposite of what we know as compounding interest on our savings accounts. Compound interest increases the value of our savings over time, in an accelerated fashion.

If you have $100 in your savings account today at 6 percent interest, it would be worth $106 in a year. Because the 6 percent interest will be earned on not just the initial $100, but the added $6 as well, the gains in the second year will be $6.36.

Over time, these compounding gains become substantial. At 6 percent interest the $100 investment will be worth about $200 in twelve years, $4,000 in 24 years, and $8,000 in 36 years. In 100 years it would be worth about $34,000.

So you see, in this case, a penny saved is more than a penny earned. After a century, the penny becomes $3.40. In 1626, the Dutch bought Manhattan for a mere $24. If that sum had been invested at just over 6 percent per year, it would have yielded more than $40 billion in 1990. This is about the total income generated in Manhattan that year.

Discounting operates in the opposite way. While compounding measures how much present-day investments will be worth in the future, discounting measures how much future benefits are worth today.

To figure the discount present value, we must first choose a discount rate to transform benefits a year from now into benefits today. If we choose the same discounting rate as the interest rate in our example on compounding, $106 a year from now would be equal in value to $100 today. Discounting the benefits of a project that generates $200 in twelve years by a discount rate of 6 percent per year would tell us that those benefits are worth $100 today.

The paramount consideration in assessing future environmental benefits in this fashion is the size of the discount rate. The larger the discount rate, the less future benefits will count when compared with current costs. If the discount rate were 10 percent, $200 in twelve years would only be worth about $64 today. If the rate were 3 percent, the current value would be $140. At zero discount rate, $1 of benefits in the future would be worth $1 in cost today. So you can see, differences in discount rates becomes crucial for benefits spanning very long periods.

This type of economic analysis can be very beneficial when making difficult decisions on how to allocate scarce resources. As long as resource scarcity makes tradeoffs between the present generation and future generations inevitable, considerations on environmental issues to benefit future generations cannot ignore economic opportunity cost. However, such decisions are made in the political arena where pure economics is not the only game in town. Decision makers are forced to consider ethical concerns and value judgments along with economics when deciding these difficult and complex issues.

To say that present and future generations have equal standing in an ethical sense does not necessarily imply that they have the same claim on present resources, because the general level of wealth or well-being may change over time. One could argue, we should sacrifice today for the benefit of future generations only if the average well-being of people in the future goes up by more than we lose on average today. If present trends continue, advances in technology and knowledge will make people better off in the future than we are today. In that case, more than a dollar of gains to them would be needed to make up for a dollar lost to us.

PDA 100th Anniversary Display In Capitol

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In the Rotunda of the state Capitol, Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius on Tuesday unveiled a display commemorating the 100th anniversary of the state's agriculture agency.

In a brief ceremony, Brosius told onlookers that is was a special pleasure to recognize the department's 100th anniversary.

"This display — which will remain in the Capitol Rotunda for two weeks — serves as a tribute both to the people who have worked for the department, and for the farmers and consumers we have served for 100 years.

"The display highlights the diversity of both our products and our services," he said.

The display is about 25 feet long and about 8-feet high, that structurally resembles a collapsible room divider. It is a mirror-balanced design, with evergreens on either end, commodity and product displays next toward the center, and the photographs about different aspects agriculture.

The display was built to resemble one done years ago, and incorporated examples of Pennsylvania commodities and processed foods.

The display also commemorates Farm-City Week, which ended Thursday, with Thanksgiving.

"We have put the display here during Farm-City Week so that is can also be a reminder of the very close ties we share with our urban and suburban neighbors," he said.

Brosius mentioned the tie-in to Thanksgiving and said that it was "... appropriate that we recognize the accomplishments of American farmers who produce the safest, most nutritios, least expensive food ever produced in the history of the world.

"In addition to himself, each farmer produces enough food to feed 129 others at a cost of only 10 percent of the average disposable family income.

"This is in contrast to the six people he (the average farmer) provided for when the department was founded," the secretary said.

He was joined in the ceremony by state Apple Queen Kristen Johnston and state Alternate Dairy Princess Heather Oberholtzer.

The agriculture display was located along the northwest edge of the Rotunda, while along the southwest wall was a table of Pennsylvania dairy, apple and some other commodities provided by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board.

Brosius reviewed the history of the department, which grew out of a State Agricultural Board. "The department was established as a service agency for both farmers and consumers," Brosius said.

"Interestingly, Pennsylvania was the first state to pass meat inspection laws and the first to establish livestock sanitary services — a tradition of protecting our consumers and providing for the safety and wholesomeness of the food supply which continues today," he said.

"Agriculture continues to be the commonwealth's number one industry," Brosius said. "Though the numbers of both farms and farmers are dwindling, out influence and our importance never wavers."

Dairy Professor Receives Career Recognition

NEWARK, Del. — Dr. George F.W. Haenlein recently received the Distinguished Service Award from the Northeast Section of the American Society of Animal Science and the Northeast Branch of the American Dairy Science Association in recognition for his outstanding contribution to dairy and animal sciences.

"It was an honor and a surprise to receive this award from my colleagues," said Haenlein, a professor in the department of animal and food science at the University of Delaware (UD), where he teaches classes and laboratories in dairy science and animal behavior. He is also Cooperative Extension dairy specialist and is responsible for Delaware Dairy Herd Improvement Program.

Born in Germany, Haenlein became a naturalized U.S. citizen in 1957 and joined UD the same year as a research associate in animal nutrition.

In addition to his German doctorate in animal nutrition, he completed a doctorate at the University of Wisconsin-Madison in dairy science in 1966, and returned to UD. In 1974, he became full professor.

Throughout his career, Haenlein has been recognized for contributions to his credit in several areas.

With more than 90 research publications, he was one of the early reporters on the critical importance of length of fiber and the effects of the physical form of diet on normal rumen digestion and normal milk composition.

He demonstrated that sorghum silage was a profitable alternative to corn silage in the often drought-stricken mid-Atlantic region.

He presented evidence that subclinical mastitis as monitored by somatic cell count reduces casein content in milk.

And in a regional study involving several thousand Guernsey and Holstein cows, he helped establish the relationships between blood and milk protein types, which can be used in dairy cattle selection to improve herd productivity.

As Cooperative Extension specialist, he developed UD's dairy herd as a model for farmers in the region. The herd demonstrates profitability even in urban proximity, the high-tech use of electronic dairy herd feeding, milking and nursing calves.

He writes a monthly dairy management column that is published by many dairy trade magazines in the mid-Atlantic region and throughout the United States.

His leadership in alternative dairy farming on a national and international scale developed from his early experience and research with dairy goats. Many of his technical and popular publications with dairy goats have helped establish the U.S. dairy goat industry.

He wrote the widely acclaimed Extension Goat Handbook and the first Nutrient Requirement Bulletin commissioned by the National Research Council.

Haenlein is also a nationally and internationally recognized authority in dairy goat nutrition and husbandry. He has been an approved regional dairy cattle and dairy goat judge, and a national cheese judge.

Brant Honored By York Extension Service

Keystone Rib Cookoff, and is an associate director of the York County Conservation District. He has worked extensively with the York Area Chamber of Commerce's Ag Committee to promote an understanding of agriculture throughout the urban community.

Last year, Brant was named director of the York County Parks Service. In that capacity, he is helping to develop new programs in cooperation with the extension service, especially in the areas of horticulture and landscaping. Nature Link, one program the Park Service will be cosponsoring, is an educational endeavor focusing on urban children.

"By working with urban children, being mentors for them, we can teach them about nature," said Brant, who is excited about the new educational outreach program.

Brant was raised on a York Township vegetable farm and earned his ag business degree at Penn State. He and his wife, Ruth Ann, reside in York.

Special recognition was extended to several staffers and supporters of extension and related programs. Agronomy specialist John Rowehl was honored for 10 years of service with the York County extension. EPNEF adviser Judy Bruggeman was honored for her work with the nutrition programs. Recognition for contributions to community gardening efforts went to Earl "Tony" Hower and Mike Jefferson.

Reverend Christy Jo Walters-dorff, a former York County 4-H member, was a featured speaker who spoke humorously about how "4-H ruined my life." She is the pastor at Westminster Church of the Brethren, Westminster, Maryland and has directed the efforts of several national Youth Work Camps in Appalachia.

"Once a person becomes involved with 4-H, they are never again the same," she said. "It changes your perspectives and your priorities and puts you at odds with those of much of the rest of the world.

"4-H taught me that I had worth because of who I was," she said, noting that the program is an equalizer of members of various ages and different backgrounds.

Seven board members were elected to the extension's board of directors, two of them for second three-year terms. Beginning their second terms of service are Ron Werner, Loganville, and Ed Rohrbaugh, Seven Valleys. Newly elected to the board are Dorothy Stambaugh, East Berlin; Rep. Michael Waugh, Seven Valleys; Martin Reichard, York; Bob McIlvain, Dover; and Dave Mille, York.

The 4-H Center's animal exhibition building is nearly completed, according to livestock and dairy agent Tim Beck. Beck praised the core of volunteers who have donated time and supplies to the facility. Because of the volunteer efforts, the facility, valued at $140,000, will be finished with only about $65,000 in actual cash outlays and will carry no debt.

A 4-H Endowment Fund, established in 1981 and grown to a current level of about $100,000, will help to maintain the extensive and growing facilities at the 4-H Center, according to Jay Rush, endowment fund board member. Sources for the Endowment Fund are primarily from individuals and some civic contributions. Memorials and bequests are also instrumental in helping to grow the fund to continue the highly-successful 4-H Center, which is utilized extensively by numerous other agriculture, civic, and community groups in addition to the 4-H activities held there.

Agronomy agent John Rowehl wa recognized for 10 years of service with the York Cooperative Extension Service. County extension director Roxanne Price presented Rowehl with an engraved silver bell.

Four Generations Farm At Walnut Ridge

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

MIDDLETOWN, Md. — Helen Hawker came to Walnut Ridge Farm as a bride in 1936 with her husband, Maynard.

Her father-in-law Edward Hawker purchased the farm for the newlyweds, who had met one another at a Farm Bureau meeting in Baltimore.

Helen brought two Jersey cows from her home to the farm with her, and Maynard brought some Guernseys. Helen said recently, "The Jerseys didn't last long," as Maynard liked Guernseys.

That was the start of the Walnut Ridge herd.

Today, Walnut Ridge Farm is home to a Guernsey herd with a milking string of about 76. Walnut Ridge cows have been award winners at the county and state levels, and have been as far as Louisville, to the National Guernsey show.

The herd includes a 90-point 4-year-old cow, Walnut Ridge Frank Maggie, that was senior and grand champion at the Frederick County fair this year, and an 87-point 4-year-old that was reserve senior champion at the state level, and that came away from Harrisburg last year with a first place ribbon.

Four generations of Hawkers and their families are now involved in farming and showing cattle.

"It's not a big operation, but then again, it's not a backyard operation, to support three families," said Pam Moser, one of Helen's four granddaughters.

Helen and Maynard had two sons, Douglas and Robert. Robert is a bachelor. Douglas married Evelyn, and the couple have four daughters: Debbie, Kitty, Pam, and Dawn.

Helen Hawker stands in the milking parlor of Walnut Ridge Farm, where she and her late husband Maynard came to farm in 1936 and developed a herd of Guernseys that is now cared for by four generations of family.

Dawn, the youngest, is still at home and in high school. Among the other three girls, there are 10 children, who are the great-grandchildren of Helen and Maynard. Maynard passed away in 1990.

Although there have been many changes in the farming operation since it was established 60 years ago, the Hawkers have never wavered from their commitment to farming as a family.

Maynard and Helen started out milking the cows in the barnyard until they could renovate the bottom of the bank barn in the summer of '36.

A spring ran under the old washhouse, and the five gallon cans of milk were kept there. The milk truck parked up the road, and the cans of milk were carried by hand to the truck.

In between the births of her children, she suffered a broken knee, yet kept working. No challenge was too great for her.

Once, when a man driving the tractor picked up and walked off, Maynard sent the couple's son Douglas, aged five, to tell her he needed her in the field. She was to bring the tractor, but she didn't know how to drive it.

"Don't worry, I'll show you how!" cried the first grader, and he did. "I had to back it up out of the shed," recalled Helen, who accomplished the task with her young helper at her side.

"He'd take one on the haywagon, and I'd take one on the tractor," she says of her children, and that was how the couple accomplished their work.

"We made our own fun in those days," recalled Helen, "a lot of it."

Sunday evening haywagon picnics provided a time to socialize. If it wasn't too dry, the family would make a fire and cook their evening meal out in the field.

The Hawkers gradually updated their dairy over the years. At first the milk was cooled over spring water and icebox water.

"We used to cool our watermelon in there, too, and the milk inspector didn't like it," remembers Robert Hawker. The first milk tank was installed around 1954.

Walnut Ridge was one of the last farms in the area to make the transition from horses to tractors.

"We used to have only horses. Then we had two tractors and two teams of horses. Now, we have seven tractors and no horses," said Robert.

A double-four herringbone parlor was added in 1990, with room allocated for expansion to a double-six in the future.

Today any combination of Helen and Maynard's grandchildren and great-grandchildren can be found running around the farm on a given day. There is no shortage of loving care to be found in the arms of an aunt, grandmother, or great-grandmother for the children whose parents are working on the farm.

Pam Moser, Douglas and Evelyn's third daughter, is in charge of the cows at Walnut Ridge. Her

Learn The 'How And Why' Of Sheep Pregnancy Diagnosis

Steven L. Milliken, VMD
Lititz

In the past, diagnosis of pregnancy in sheep was more of an art than science. Most methods proved to be either inaccurate, impractical, or were cost- or time-prohibitive. With the availability of real-time ultrasound, early pregnancy diagnosis in sheep is both accurate and an economically valuable management tool.

Using transabdominal ultrasound, pregnancy can be diagnosed in sheep as early as 30 days of gestation. Visualization of the fetus(es) is most accurate between 45 and 100 days of gestation.

However, the ideal time to count the number of fetuses is between 45 and 75 days of gestation, which is important for management considerations. Pregnancy can still be diagnosed after 100 days but fetal size is too large to allow distinction of multiple fetuses.

Accuracy of pregnancy diagnosis in sheep is in the range of 97-100 percent with an experienced ultrasound operator. Economically, early diagnosis of pregnancy in sheep can help save on feed costs and allow for better management of ewes with multiple fetuses.

Open ewes can be either rebred or culled early in the season to help reduce feed costs. Animals with one or multiple fetuses can be separated to better utilize feed and decrease neonatal losses. This is important since ewes with multiple fetuses require approximately 50 percent more feed to produce healthy lambs.

Overfeeding ewes with single fetuses or underfeeding ewes with multiple fetuses can result in over- or under-conditioned ewes and the threat of pregnancy toxemia. Also, ewes carrying multiple fetuses can be confined and watched more carefully at lambing time which results in decreased losses at lambing.

Pathologic conditions such as dead or mummified fetuses or the presence of fluid in the uterus without a fetus (pyometra, hydrometra) can often be diagnosed with ultrasound imaging. Transabdominal ultrasound is a non-invasive method of pregnancy testing and does not threaten the viability of the fetus(es).

Ultrasound pregnancy diagnosis in sheep can be an important tool in the reproductive management of your sheep flock for profit. It can also be used similarly in goats.

AFIA Says Cost, Potential Job Loss Too High On Ergonomic Standard

ARLINGTON, Va. — In a recent letter to Assistant Secretary for OSHA Joseph Dear, American Feed Industry Association (AFIA) director of feed production Brian Bursiek said, "AFIA believes the economic impact of OSHA's draft Ergonomic Protection Standard far outweighs the benefits gained." By proposing a new ergonomic standard, OSHA is responding to what it claims are significant increases in reported cases of ergonomic disorders in the aggregate workplace over the past decade.

According to an analysis by the AFIA Safety & Health Committee, which represents the association's more than 700 members, the OSHA ergonomic proposal would cost the feed industry a minimum of $783 million in start-up costs and $112 million annually thereafter.

An estimated 7,000 feed industry employees (11.7 percent of all production jobs in the industry) would lose their jobs due to new automation requirements in line with the changing standard. In addition, other more important safety programs would suffer as resources are siphoned off to comply with the ergonomics standard.

AFIA's feed industry analysis determined that cumulative trauma disorders (CTD) occur in approximately two cases per five million man-hours worked. This calculates to a frequency rate of 0.08 cases per 100 man-years. Considering the extremely low rate of annual CTD cases in the feed industry, AFIA believes the cost of compliance with the proposed ergonomic standard is not justified.

Additional hidden costs will be incurred by industry as they are passed along from the medical community. AFIA believes many physicians who would be diagnosing and treating ergonomic disorders do not have sufficient training to distinguish between work-related and non-work-related illnesses or traumas. Costs of medical personnel training, and on-site medical attention at plant facilities will be passed along to industry.

primary role in the operation is the logical result of the family's tradition of children learning by being involved from a young age.

"I've worked right beside Dad as long as I can remember," she said. Now Pam's responsibilities, in addition to being a mother herself, include full-time milking, cow and calf care, and making decisions about the genetics of the herd.

She credited her grandfather, Maynard, with instilling the work ethic in her.

"He was a tough man to work for; he was the backbone of this family," she recalled, "and I guess I was as stubborn as he was. I wouldn't leave the farm."

Getting the cows ready to show also falls under Pam's domain. Her children and her sisters' are the fourth generation to be involved in 4-H showing cows. Every child has at least one animal, and all but the youngest two are in 4-H.

Lamb Cook-Off Is Hit With All Ages

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Not only does Jennifer Zimmerman win ribbons for showing lambs, but she also takes the top prize for. cooking it.

"But I never eat it," Jennifer confessed. She can't stomach eating her own lamb that she pampered and cuddled during the show season.

Her brothers, also lamb exhibitors who live in Akron, and the 75 people attending the Lamb Cook-Off Contest held by the Woolies 4-H Club found the Hungry Jack Lamb Casserole scrumptious.

In fact, as a judge for the event, I can not imagine anyone not loving the taste of lamb if they had sampled any one of the 15 entries at the cook-off.

Indeed, it was a difficult decision for the other judge Margaret Herr and myself to choose the top three winners because each entry tasted wonderful. Because the entries were not broken down into categories, it was perhaps a bit unfair to compare roasts with stews, soups, casseroles, and kabobs. A tender, succulent roast seasoned with salt, pepper and thyme is a great entree to serve to guests but in a contest doesn't gain as many points for creativity and originality as a casserole or stew that uses unusual ingredients.

Tie for second place was split between two stews. One was prepared by Jessica and Carla Means with the help of their dad Richard and the other by Jessica Schmidt and her mom Laurie.

Carla, who is 9 years old and from Quarryville, said, "If you keep the bones in the broth and take them out after the soup is finished, it will have a better flavor."

Jessica's dad, Pete, said he knows his wife is a great cook but he needs to come to the cook-off to taste her food. He revealed that when she prepared the stew the night before, he wasn't allowed to taste it and had to settle for a canned stew for his supper.

Third place went to Sharon Bollinger of Ephrata for her Lamb Corn Noodle Bake. Sharon is the mother of three sons who have shown lambs for many years. She is an accomplished cook when it comes to making lamb.

The world seems to be made up of people who hate or love lamb and those who absolutely refuse to try it. Here's my assessment of those who claim not to like lamb — they haven't tasted quality lamb. It must be young, tender, and properly butchered. Many countries serve mutton, which is tough and not nearly as flavorful.

You're cheating both yourself and the lamb industry if you decide not to eat lamb again because you tasted it once and did not like it. To buy good tasting lamb, check with your local extension office for a family who raises lamb for butchering.

In addition to the recipes with this article, many wonderful recipes are available from the American Lamb Council. Send a self-addressed stamped business size envelope to receive free recipes from the Council at 6911 S. Yosemite St., Englewood, Colorado 80112-1414 or call (301) 771-3500.

PATRICK'S IRISH LAMB SOUP
Second-Place Tie

1½ pounds lean lamb shoulder, cubed
¼ cup water
2 cans (14.5 ounces each) beef broth
3 cups cubed potatoes
2 cups thinly sliced carrots
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
1 teaspoon seasoned pepper
1 package brown gravy mix
2 cups shredded green cabbage
Chopped parsley for garnish

In 3-quart pan with cover, heat oil and add onion, sauteing until transparent. Add lamb and cook, stirring until lightly brown. Stir in water and pepper, cover and simmer for about 30 minutes.

Mix in broth and gravy mix. Add potatoes and carrots, cover and simmer for 15 to 20 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Stir in cabbage and cook until cabbage turns a bright green.

HUNGRY JACK LAMB CASSEROLE
First Place

1 pound ground lamb
1 teaspoon salt
16-ounce can pork 'n beans
¾ cup barbecue sauce
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 can Hungry Jack refrigerated flaky biscuits
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Brown lamb and drain. Stir in next five ingredients, heat until bubbly. Pour into 2-quart casserole. Cut biscuits in half to form 20 half circles. Place biscuits around edge of casserole, cut side down. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 375 degrees for 25-30 minutes or until biscuits are golden brown.

LAMB CORN-NOODLE BAKE
Third Place

1 pound ground lamb
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup milk
1 can cream of mushroom or celery soup
8-ounces cream cheese
1½ cups whole kernel corn
8 ounces Kluski noodles, cooked with ½ teaspoon salt and dash pepper

Brown meat and onion. Stir in soup, cheese, and milk until well blended. Add remaining ingredients. Place in buttered casserole; cover with buttered bread crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees until browned.

Those who cooked or helped cook the winning entries are from left, Carla Means and Jessica Means, Jennifer Zimmerman, Sharon Bollinger, Jimmy Zimmerman, and Jessica Schmidt.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

This little fellow could hardly wait until the judges were finished so he could fill his plate.

Jay Zimmerman concedes that his sister's entry tastes pretty good.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Oh, deer. It's that time of year again.

Powered with the lingering calorie punch from Thanksgiving feasts, the million or so white-tail deer hunters that actually trek to Pennsylvania's mountains are making tracks for their favorite sites.

One person not participating in the mountain-destination trek will be The Farmer. Though he tremendously enjoys the fellowship and camraderie of hunting with the 20 or so that gather at the family/neighoborhood hunting camp to which he belongs, deer week usually finds us short-handed for the barn work.

So, in recent years, he has grown more interested in taking to the woods during archery and wild turkey seasons. Hunting competition is far less—and the weather generally much more pleasant. Or, sometimes, we just head for the camp to hunt a few hours of peace and quiet from ringing phones and bawling calves. Every trip is an adventure of sorts.

Thus, on a recent dark, gray afternoon, we drove north through mist and drizzle that threatened to become more of the slushy snow already coating the fields. Darkness already wrapped around the cabin when we pulled in through the low-hanging hemlocks and tracked through the unblemished light snow coating the small clearing of the thick forest.

Then The Farmer spied what at first glance looked like a pole stretched across the opposite end of the "U" shaped driveway that circles in from the road. A close look revealed it to be a barrier fashioned from that "Police Line—Do Not Cross" yellow plastic stripping which is stretched around a crime scene.

Huh? We looked at each other and wondered what in the world was going on.

Unlocking the door, he thew the main electric switch. Nothing. Tried a couple of more times. Still dead blackness. A closer look at the police-line barrier revealed what we by then suspected.

The heavy storm a few days before had brought down the power lines feeding into the cabin. Someone had barricaded the area where the lines still hung down in the drive. We had no lights. No lanterns.

Our flashlight batteries were blessedly fresh and provided adequate light to stoke up the woodstoves. And a supply of candles stashed for just such a power failure would provide at least enough light to read by. Sort of.

Then, opening the shutter to one window, he crunched through glass on the floor. And found a fist-size hole poked right through one of the panes. But nothing inside appeared to be missing or even disturbed. This was proving to be an adventure of a different sort than anticipated... The Farmer found a replacement pane in storage, and while I held the flashlight, replaced the window section broken by apparent "visitors."

Within an hour, the cabin had warmed enough to be reasonably comfortable. A pan of water for mint tea began to bubble on the stove. Feeling a bit like Abe Lincoln, I hunched over a card table near the light of several candles, reading and making notes. The Farmer bagged his farm magazines and stretched our on a couch.

Actually, it was rather cozy there, with no sounds but the crackling of the woodstove and a faint gurgling from the creek. Outside, fat snowflakes were falling.

By morning, a few inches of thick, white "icing" coated every surface...every bare limb...every drooping hemlock and white pine branch. It was stunningly beautiful—and exactly what we'd anticipated, weather-wise.

For deer hunters and for us simple adventure hunters, the mountain trek is a way to stay connected with the beauty of nature and the surprises it holds.

But, for the most part, I still appreciate adventures complete with electricity.

Now that you survived "Black Friday," you may be ready for some ideas about how to get through the holidays without spending so much money. Many people wrongly believe that the more expensive the gift, the more meaningful the message behind it. I disagree. In a time when company downsizing is standard and when college tuition and health care prices are escalating, it's important for families to search for ways to build lots of meaning into the approaching holiday season without going into debt.

First of all, extend the Thanksgiving holiday. Each day for the next week, tell other family members something that you are thankful for. Or play Alphabet Thanks. Going around the table saying what you're thankful for is a great tradition, but sometimes people are stumped. To make it more of a game, go around the table, starting with the letter "A" and ending with "Z." As each person takes a turn, he should mention something that begins with the next letter in the alphabet.

I also encourage regular family walks. After dinner walks or evening strolls are great. My husband's family has establsihed a tradition of walking through the "old neighborhood" for as much as an hour after the big family meal. This is a great way for the family newcomers to learn more about childhood stories. It's also a time for children to hear their parents talking about their growing-up years. (Not to mention the fact that it's great for your health!) You may enjoy asking a person to close their eyes and then leading them to a beautiful sight. Line them up with what you want them to see, then give the "Okay, open!" command. What a neat way to share the magic and beauty of the winter season. Be sure to guide carefully and slowly.

Another way to build meaning into your celebrations without much cost is to use your Christmas tree to dipslay reminders of special times together. Dried flowers from a high school dance, bride and groom cake top from your wedding, seashells from the summer's vacation, postcards that Dad sent you when he was out of town on business, dried peppers, soybean pods or other reminders of the crops you've raised this year can all be decorations on the tree. Make sure each person in your family (pets included) have one symbolic ornament on the tree representing them. Tell the stories behind the decorations.

Take time to sit in candle/fire light and listen to the quiet.

A priceless gift that you can offer is that of your family tree. This fits in wonderfully with the meaning of Hanukkah, Kwanzaa, and Christmas. Collect pictures, make charts or write narratives of your family tree and give these as gifts to your children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. Don't think that you have to tell the whole story in one gift. Choose one era of your life, one relative, or one time of year to talk about. Memories and family heritage are treasures that money cannot buy.

In our commercialized society, gift-giving can become ridiculous. Set a different standard for your family. Purchase gifts with special meaning related to your ethnic, cultural, or family heritage. Or give gifts that you've made or that require your time or talent. Consider asking each person to offer at least one homemade, personally created gift. This might be a child's artwork, a poetic reading, a loaf of nutbread, a computer card, or finally scrubbed whitewall tires. What could you give?

As a family, dig through your closets for old toys. Spruce them up. Wash plastic dolls, glue game pieces, sew new eyes on the stuffed animal. Then give these transformed toys to needy children in your community. By giving to others, you relive the messages of the holidays—"good will to all people," "peace on earth," "miracles are possible," "you can make a difference."

Finally, ask each family member to complete the sentence, "What I want from you that you can't buy..." then create ways to give these gifts instead of spending money. Here are some things that may be mentioned: play a game with them, read to them, let them go to the pet store and play with the puppies, stay up really late, wear your sweater to school, have your hair brushed, have the pot and pan cupboard straightened, have your back scratched. This is an excellent alternative for couples who don't want to or can't afford to spend money on each other but still want to express their care for one another.

A variation of this "gift-giving" is to give a gift in fantasy. Write a card or find a picture that tells the recipient, "If I could give you anything I wanted to, I would give you..."

After the fact, discuss with other family members what were the best things that happened during the holidays and what things weren't worth the effort. Keep a list of these things and refer to them when you plan next year's schedule.

In a season when time is already scarce, it makes a lot of sense to take a few minutes to pause and plan ways to bring meaning back into the celebrations without breaking the bank! Happy holidays.

Holiday Buffet Ideas

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.) — Along with the excitement of the holidays comes the desire to entertain family and friends — and the stress that accompanies party planning. According to a recent survey of 1,000 people by the Pork Information Bureau of the National Pork Producers Council, most Americans plan to entertain for the holidays, but many have found a low-stress approach — the buffet.

Of the 52 percent of those polled who said that entertaining will be part of their holiday season, 34 percent said they plan to entertain with a buffet-style meal. "People want to put their best foot forward during the holidays, but without spending an evening shackled to the stove while guests enjoy the party," says Robin Kline, a registered dietician and director of the Pork Information Bureau. "Buffets are perfect because they work for any group and allow the host or hostess to enjoy the party."

According to Kline, the secret to successful holiday entertaining is preparing meals that allow the host or hostess to enjoy good food and good friends without fussing in the kitchen. Rusty Ryan, Hatfield Quality Meats marketing manager, agrees. "Easy-to-prepare foods are essential to a successful holiday buffet, but they don't have to look or taste simple," he notes.

This year, for example, Hatfield Quality Meats is offering Family Classic hams, which are presliced, pre-glazed and fruited. Ryan explains, "Our customers want to serve great, gourmet-tasting hams that look beautiful on the holiday buffet table, but that don't take a lot of trouble to prepare. Hatfield's fully-cooked, presliced Family Classic Ham, which has a honey glaze and pineapple and cherry garnish, needs only to be put directly on the buffet table — heated or cold."

And the delicious, attractive and convenient aspects of the holiday buffet needn't end with the ham. Following are three top tips for your holiday buffet from Hatfield Quality Meats:

Avoid the Maddening Holiday Rush — plan your buffet in advance, making a detailed shopping list as you go. Buy and begin preparing food several days in advance. Set up the buffet table the day before the party.

Less is More — plan easy-to-prepare, easy-to-serve and easy-to-eat foods. Make it simple for guests to take and eat food from the buffet without awkwardness or messiness. Begin with an entree like pre-sliced ham, and follow through with finger foods, bite-size pieces of cheese, casseroles, stews and other simple items.

Map Out Your Buffet — plan your buffet so it is an convenient and logical as possible. Put plates and your main dish first, followed by side dishes and salads, and, finally, silverware and napkins. Drinks and dessert may be served in a separate room or from a separate table. Place buffet items towards the center of the table, so guests can put down their plates to serve themselves along the way.

Sheila Clouser, who is the extension secretary who has worked with 4-H for 12 years, was honored with the Clover Award.

J.T. Ramsay and Stephanie Wojszwillo were selected as outstanding 4-H'ers at the Reading Fair this year. At the banquet they were also honored for having contributed so much to the Berks County Program. Stephanie's focus has benn clothing, textiles, and nutrition projects offered by the Leesport 4-H Club. She is a physical therapy student at Alvernia College.

AgrAbility Helps Farmers With Medical Problems

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — AgrAbility for Pennsylvanians may be able to help if physical or medical problems are making it difficult for you to get your farm work done.

AgrAbility is part of a national information and technology network for farmers, farm workers, and family members who are continuing to farm despite on-going physical or medical difficulties.

The Easter Seal Society of Centre-Clinton Counties and Penn State Cooperative Extension have teamed up to provide the AgrAbility in the state.

It started in 1991 and now there are 18 projects in the U.S.

AgrAbility can help those with physical or medical problems by providing information on tools that can be used with one hand, adapting foot controls for hand operations, easier ways to operate tractors and equipment, alternative agricultural enterprises that have been successful, and telling how farmers with similar problems have learned to cope.

Sometimes a professional trained in rural rehabilitation will visit your farm to suggest modifications and help find funding to pay for devices or modifications.

For more information about AgrAbility, write to Agra Ability for Pennsylvanians, 433 Agricultural Administration Bldg., Penn State Uni., University Park, PA 16802 or call (814) 863-7868.

A Bounty Of Wild Game Recipes

When the hunters in your family return home upon successfully bagging their trophy deer, the chef needs to be ready with a variety of tasty venison recipes.

Proper handling in the field and until the meat is served is of utmost importance to insure food safety and quality. Contact your local Cooperative Extension for further information on dressing, handling, and storing deer.

Today's recipes offer a tasty selection so it doesn't seem like you are always cooking the same meat. You can use venison in place of beef in most recipes. When preparing venison use the same cooking techniques as those for lean beef. Trim the outer layer of fat before cooking. Use a small amount of vegetable oil if you plan to saute, or if necessary, vegetable spray to grease the pan. This is suggested as venison fat tends to have strong flavor and can become rancid quickly.

Meat of younger animals is more tender so dry cooking methods such as pan frying, roasting, and broiling can be employed. Tougher meat from older deer or the chuck and shank cuts in general benefit from moist cooking such as braising or stewing. Most importantly, be sure to cook the meat completely as you would pork or chicken.

Remember not only is venison tasty, it is nutritious. Venison, as with most game, has less fat than domestic meats. Cholesterol is an integral part of the cell membrane of animals so the cholesterol content of meat is more closely tied to the membranes of muscle cells than to the fat content of the muscle. This means, as a rule of thumb, that game meat tends to have the same amount of cholesterol as beef or pork. However, since game gets more exercise, game meat has considerably less fat than domestic meat.

	Calories	Protein (% of USRDA)	Fat (% of Calories)	Cholesterol (milligrams)	Iron (% of USRDA)
Venison	158	67%	18%	112	25%
Beef	222	67%	42%	90	18%
Chicken	190	64%	35%	89	7%

If it's been a successful hunting season, you may be eating wild game for many months. This necessity is not always greeted with delight from all family members.

You can make a stringent diet more palable by adapting favorite beef recipes for venison. Make sure venison is thoroughly cooked — you should not eat it slightly red like you may beef.

Venison usually tastes more tender and moist if cooked slowly — crock pots are wonderful.

Depending on the diet of deer, some venison tastes almost identical to beef, but some has a gamey flavor. If you don't like the gamey flavor, use plenty of herbs, seasonings, and onion to camouflage the flavor.

MINI BRAN MEAT LOAVES

Vegetable cooking spray
1½ pounds venison
1¼ cups rice bran
1 cup finely chopped onions
½ cup diced red pepper
½ cup snipped parsley
½ cup dry bread crumbs
½ cup picante sauce
2 egg whites, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon lemon pepper
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
Picante sauce or ketchup (optional)

Coat 8x4-inch loaf pan with cooking spray. Combine all ingredients in large bowl; mix well. Bake at 350 degrees 50 to 60 minutes. Serve with picante sauce or ketchup, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Holiday Greenery

An early snow covered landscape leaves unfinished work in our backyards. Light pruning now improves a plant's health, symmetry and natural form. Just remember to always make the pruning cut at a joint in a branch. This permits the remaining leaves to cover and hide the cut. For plant needing more severe pruning, don't hesitate to remove unwanted branches. Severe heading back cuts allow for even more vigorous growth next year.

Even healthy, vigorously growing trees may suffer limb-loss as the result of heavy snows or ice storms. This often leaves ragged stubs which need to be properly pruned to protect the tree from decay. Decay is a condition that results from the digestion of wood by fungi and other microbes.

When a tree is wounded, a natural process begins that results in the covering of the wound by bark and new wood. This process is called callusing. Other processes make the wood beneath the wound unsuitable for growth of decay organisms.

When a branch stub is left on a tree, the healing processes are delayed. Prune the stub back to the natural projections, or branch collar at the base of the limb. Removing the branch collar will also delay callusing and could result in decay. The application of wound dressings has not been shown to aid callusing or reduce decay.

Pruning now offers plenty of "greens" for decorating. A few branches that are 12 to 15 inches long makes for an attractive centerpiece or wreath. For some centerpieces, pieces no longer than 4 to 6 inches may suffice. Obtain these short pieces by "tipping" evergreen trees. By tipping we remove just the tip of the shoot. Done with a pair of hand shears or a pruning knife, tipping should provide all the 4 to 6 inch pieces of greenery needed for decorating, leaving a very natural looking plant in the process. Tipping done with a pair of electric hedge shears may give greens, but it also produces unnaturally shaped shrubs.

What evergreen can be used for Christmas greenery? Some kinds are better than others. Boxwood, with its dense, fine texture, is especially popular. Japanese hollies are a good substitute, and American, English, and Chinese hollies are excellent for the purpose.

Of the pines, the fine, flexible, bright green needles of the white pine are best. Other pines are also satisfactory. Spruces make excellent wreaths. The Colorado spruce holds its needles much better than the Norway.

Hemlock does not hold its needles well. If used in an arrangement where the stems will be in water there should be not problem.

In pruning the larger evergreens such as pine, spruce and hemlock, get the greens by removing unneeded branches. Both pine and hemlock will also respond to tip pruning. Take care when tip pruning a spruce. Make sure you don't overprune older trees and spoil the plant's natural shape.

Both yews and junipers are good sources of greenery, too. The dark green needles of yew are especially good and the plants tolerate pruning well.

Even rhododendrons can be pruned now for holiday decorations. Prune them back to force more branching next eyar. Leave a clean, smooth cut. Many rhododendrons need pruning anyway to keep them in scale with their setting and to keep them compact. Avoid removing branches with flower buds if there's concern about the number of blooms next spring.

Lastly, when using any greens for decorations, be aware of the potential fire hazard of these materials. And, remember that those greens which are kept in colder rooms and in water will last much longer. When using greens without water, avoid burning candles near them. Also keep them away from heaters, electric lights, television sets and other sources of heat.

Tips On Avoiding Overspending During Gift-Giving Season

(NAPS) — 'Tis the season to be spending. On average, generosity-gone-mad Americans spend over $76 billion on holiday gifts. A bit excessive? According to the Quicken Personal Financial Survey, 52 percent of Americans agree that the holidays are the most difficult time to manage finances.

"This holiday spending frenzy leads many Americans to wake up in January with a bad debt hangover," states Ann Diamond, a financial counselor and author of Fear Of Finance. "The biggest problem people encounter during the holidays is charging purchases on credit cards and worrying about the bills at a later date, after the gifts have been given or used up."

Diamond recommends the following tips to help gain control of our spending during the gift-giving season:

• Don't wait until the last minute. Allow time to comparison shop; bargains are easier to find earlier in the season.

• Set a holiday budget. Plan ahead and create your own Christmas Club account to save cash year-round for holiday shopping. Also, use simple personal finance tools to help you plan ahead. Quicken is a personal finance software program that helps you organize your finances easily. It can help you plan oy showing how much you've spent on items such as holiday gifts, dining and entertainment. Once you are able to track where your money goes, you'll gain control of your finances and prevent overspending during the holidays and all year round.

• Make it a cash-only Christmas. Restrict your total gift expenses to what you've got in your pocket or checking account.

• Implement a family lottery system. Instead of exchanging gifts with every member of your extended family, have members draw a name from a hat and give one really special present rather than ten smaller gifts people are likely to return.

• Make gifts if you can't afford to buy something for everyone. Creative presents like a gift certificate for baby-sitting services, baked goods or a personalized cassette tape of sentimental songs are often more thoughtful gifts than store bought merchandise.

Remember that the holidays will be over in January, but the bills will be an unpleasant memory for months to come, if you overspend. The 52 percent of Americans who agree that the holidays are the most difficult time to manage finances can help themselves out of the post-holiday blues by planning ahead and spending realistically.

QUESTION — Mrs. Charles Creasy of Wrightsville would like a detailed recipe for making beef tripe.

QUESTION — F. Eleanor Rebuck is on a fat- and salt-free diet. She would like to know the ingredients used in soft ice cream or frozen custard.

QUESTION — Julianne Medaglia, Birdsboro, wants recipes for quick and easy (30 minute type) dinner ideas that can be made in the morning and cooked for supper or slow cooker ideas. Her husband and kids are not crazy about casseroles and that really limits things, she writes.

QUESTION — J.M. Koser, Narvon, would like a recipe for Brown Bobby Cookies, which were popular about 50 years ago. The cookies were triangular with a triangle hole in the center. They were made in a special griddle like a waffle iron and frosted. Flavors included chocolate, vanilla, and spice. She would like both the recipe and information on the griddle.

DEER BOLOGNA

10 pounds venison, ground
1 pound brown sugar
¼ teaspoon red pepper, ground
1 teaspoon black pepper
2½ teaspoons saltpeter
6 ounces salt
½ teaspoon mace
2 cups white Karo corn syrup

Mix together all ingredients except venison and pour over ground venison. Mix thoroughly with your hands. Stuff in 3-inch wide by 12-inch long cloth bags made of old white sheets.

Hang for 2 days before smoking. Smoke three times at 7-day intervals. Let dry and cure 3 months.

Contributor writes: This is a very good recipe for deer bologna. I am very proud of it because I made it up myself. It took many years of adding and tasting until I got it just the way my family likes it. I am happy to share it with others.

BRAISED VENISON

1½ pounds stew venison, cubed
1 small jar sliced mushrooms
1 clove garlic or garlic salt
1 diced onion
1 bouillon cube
1 cup hot water
15-ounce can tomato sauce
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons Worchestershire sauce
½ teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Drain mushrooms, save liquid. Brown meat, onion, and mushrooms in oil. Dissolve bouillon in water, add mushroom liquid then add remaining ingredients. Pour into baking casserole. Bake covered 300 degrees for 2½ to 3 hours. Mix ½ cup water and 2 tablespoons cornstarch in shaker cup. Add to casserole to thicken sauce. Serve over noodles. Delicious.

VENISON CHOPS WITH CRANBERRIES

4 venison chops
1 small onion, diced
½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup brown sugar
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup whole cranberries, fresh or frozen
1 tablespoon cornstarch, dissolved in a little orange juice

Make a marinade of orange juice and onion. Place chops in a shallow pan, pour marinade over, and let stand for 2 hours. (For very tender venison, this step can be omitted.)

Remove chops, wipe dry. Brown chops in butter in a frying pan. Don't overcook! They should be rare (Tip to test for doneness: when you poke the meat, it should give as much as when you poke the heel of your hand.) Remove and place on warm platter in warm oven. They will continue to cook a little bit as you make the sauce.

Add the reserved marinade to pan and heat and deglaze, stirring constantly. Add cranberries and sugar and continue to cook until cranberries burst. Add salt and pepper to taste and thicken with the cornstarch. Cook over med heat, stirring constantly until sauce is thick. Pour over chops and serve.

This recipe is also good with caribou, bear or pork.

PHILIP'S CHEESE STEAKS

⅓ pound Venision chip steak
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 medium yellow onion, sliced
½ medium bell pepper, sliced
4 mushrooms, sliced
2 slices American cheese
¼ cup spaghetti sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
1 hard Italian hoagie roll

On hot grill, oiled with olive oil, cook peppers and mushrooms until limp, onions until caramelized. Remove when done and set aside. Grill chip steak, chopping and turning with spatula. When meat is cooked, add tomato sauce, continuing to chop and turn to mix it up, adding salt and pepper. When mixed, spread out into oblong pile and cover with cheese slices. Cover until cheese is melted. Heat cut roll on grill. Place meat mixture on roll, cover with onions, peppers and mushrooms as desired.

BEAR CHOPS DIANE

4 bear chops
2 tablespoons butter
juice of half a lemon
1 tablespoons chopped chives
Salt and pepper to taste

Brown the bear chops in a pan with the butter. When brown, remove from pan and place on warm platter in warm oven. Add lemon juice and seasonings to pan. Quickly cook and deglaze pan. Pour pan juice over chops and serve. If the bear was old and tough, you may want to marinate the chops in wine or orange juice for 2 hours before cooking. This recipe is also good with venison or beefsteak.

Anne Wiegle
Pottstown

Note: because bears can carry trichonosis, bear meat should be cooked to the medium well done stage, like pork. Tip for testing well done, when you poke it, it should give as much as when you poke the end of your thumb.

BARBECUED DEER

1 cup finely chopped onions
¼ cup finely chopped celery
3 tablespoons butter
6 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
6 tablespoons wine vinegar
½ cup lemon juice
3 cups ketchup
3 teaspoons prepared mustard
Salt and pepper to taste
1 12 ounce can beer
3 cloves garlic
2 onions, sliced
3 bay leaves
2 or 3 pound deer meat
Salt and pepper to taste

BBQ Sauce

Combine chopped onions, celery, butter, sugar, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, lemon juice, ketchup, mustard, salt and pepper in a saucepan. Simmer for 15 minutes. This sauce freezes well.

To barbecue deer, mix 1 cup barbecue sauce, beer, garlic, salt, pepper, slice onions and bay leaves in a large bowl, add deer meat. Stir to cover meat. Refrigerate 12 to 24 hours.

Remove deer meat and onion slices from marinade, place in crock pot. Add 1 cup of the marinade sauce, cover and cook on low for 8-10 hours. Yields 4-6 servings.

PENNSYLVANIA WHITETAIL CHILI

This chili won first prize, amateur division, in 1993 at the Ryeress Chili Cook-off.

*Note: Eastern Pennsylvania whitetail deer are young and plump, fed upon corn, soybeans and apples from our orchard. Best are young antlerless bucks or fat does. Very low in saturated fat. This chili can also be made with any other ground meat: bear, moose, elk, caribou, beef, pokr, mutton, turkey, chicken, small game, road kills, etc. If using a fatty meat, brown in separate pan and drain excess fat after browning.

In a 12 quart cast aluminum stock pot, place:
½ cup olive oil
4 large yellow onions, chopped
8 cloves garlic, chopped fine
2 large or 4 small bell peppers, chopped

In mortar, grind:
1 teaspoon fresh peppercorns
1 teaspoon cumin seeds

Add:
½ cup chili powder
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 teaspoons oregano leaves or ½ cup fresh copped
1 teaspoon thyme leaves or ¼ cup fresh
1 teaspoon marjoram leaves or ¼ cup fresh
4 bay leaves; bruise in mortar before adding
1 tablespoon Hungarian paprika
2 teaspoon salt

Cook until all meat is browned, adding more olive oil if necessary to keep from sticking, stirring constantly.

Note: because the fat carries the flavor, add all the herbs and spices at this stage. Seasonings added later will not have the same effect.

Add:
¼ cup brown sugar
2 28 ounce cans whole plum tomatoes, or fresh, peeled tomatoes from your garden. Note: Pennsylvania home grown tomatoes seem to be very acidic—you may want to add more sugar if using home grown.
2 28 ounce cans Italian style spaghetti sauce

Stir well, cover and cook over very low heat 4 hours, stirring occasionally. It should be juicy; don't let it get too dry.

Add:

Remove from heat. Cool and refrigerate overnight.

Slowly reheat next day. Towards end of cooking time, if there is too much liquid, leave cover off to evaporate extra liquid. Don't let it get too thick or it will burn. Adjust seasonings: it particular, you may need more salt and chili powder. Add more cayenne to make it hotter. I don't use jalepeno peppers, as they are very acidic and spoil the flavor.

VENISON STROGANOFF

1 venison steak, cut into thin strips approximatley ¼ "x¾ "x3" long. Cut while steak is partially forzen for a neat job.
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon marjoram
½ teaspoon thyme
4 tablespoons butter
½ cup white wine
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons tomato paste
½ pound mushrooms, sliced thick
½ cup sour cream

Mix flour with seasonings and dredge meat strips; shake off excess, but reserve leftover flour mixture.

Heat butter in frying pan; add venison strips and cook until brown. You will need to do this in two batches. Remove meat from pan. Add wine and water to pan and return to heat, stirring constantly. Add tomato paste. Return meat to pan and add mushrooms. The mushrooms will add liquid, but watch it since you might need to add a bit more liquid.

Cover and reduce heat. Simmer for 20 minutes. If gravy is too think, moisten a teaspoon of reserved flour mixture in water and add to thicken. When the right consistancy, remove from heat. Stir in ½ cup sour cream and serve over noodles. Note: after sour cream is added do not boil again, or sauce will curdle.

Let's start from the top. These traditional Thanksgiving symbols are the only farm animal that started in North America — every other kind of farm animal was brought here from other countries. Over time people tamed these wild gobblers until they looked and acted pretty much like they do today. (Scientists call this domestication.) But even though most turkeys are now raised on farms, they still remember parts of their wild past.

For example, turkeys like to hang out in groups. A male turkey goes gobble, gobble, gobble whenever he hears a strange noise. All the other turkeys in his group recognize that sound as an alarm — just like a pack of coyotes send out yips and yipes when danger is near.

Our turkey specialist friends tell us that turkeys are so group-oriented that people can herd them just like cows or sheep. If you tried to herd a group of chickens, they would just run all over the place!

Scientifically yours, Twig

When The Telephone Rings

Many young children take great pleasure in answering the telephone. But when parents are unavailable or not home, children need to be aware of some important telephone rules to help assure their safety. Rules that you can share with your child include the following:

•Answer the telephone pleasantly.

•If the caller wants to speak to a parent and the parent is not home, say that your parent cannot come to the phone right now. Never say that you are home alone.

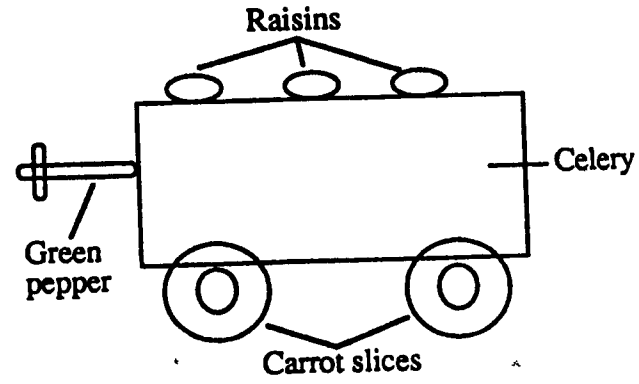
•If a parent is unavailable or not at home, take a message with the name and phone number of the caller and let them know that your parent will return their call.

•If the same person calls more than once and says it's important, call your parent or another trusted adult.

•Keep conversations short—the longer you talk, the more others learn about you.

•If you get a "prank" call, hang up right away and call your parent. Do not answer the phone or door until your parent arrives home

Be Creative With Veggies



Most children like finger foods and what better foods for little fingers than raw vegetables. Sometimes it is a challenge to present vegetables to children in creative ways. Success often depends on their involvement in the preparation and if it is fun. Some things you can make are baskets, wagons, and ships. These can hold other vegetables, dip, peanut butter, or maybe that new food item you want your child to try. Try the following ideas, or let your child create a new container.

Vegetable Wagon

Celery
Peanut Butter
Green Pepper
Raisins
Carrot Slices

Put A Tractor Under A Holiday Tree

With so many possible destinations for the annual holiday shopping odyssey — the mall, the discount store, the toy store, etc. — one might not think of stopping by the local agricultural equipment dealership.

Considering that it would have to be a very large holiday tree to park a full-sized tractor or combine beneath it, the dealership scales things down a bit.

For the sandbox or showcase, toy and collectible replicas of agricultural equipment are becoming popular gift items for young and old alike.

"They're definitely not just for kids," said John Harper, Case Corporation, senior product manager, parts marketing. "There's a whole cottage industry built around these models, and some of the collectable ones are worth quite a bit of money."

That's why he recommends investing in the newer models now, before they become high-priced collectibles. "They're great gifts, and the value often goes beyond the price."

"They're really popular gifts," Harper said. "People like to have models of equipment they own or use. And, for children, there's a natural attraction to toy farm equipment, just like toy cars or trains. We offer toy barns, animals, workers, equipment — everything a child needs to create his or her own miniature farm."

Toy vs. Replica

While sometimes it's hard to keep toys out of adult hands and collectibles out of child hands, it's usually easy to spot which is which.

Collector models offer great detail. Toy models must conform with child safety laws, such as using rubber for any parts that stick out from the model to prevent injury.

"A lot of people buy vintage tractor models because they remind them of tractors they grew up on," Harper said. "It's a bit of their childhood they can put on the mantle or the desk."

"The Farmall M was one of the most popular tractors of its day," Harper said. "It's very well known in the agricultural industry."

The Precision series is known for its exquisite detail. From concept to sale takes about one year, Harper said, because the artists and sculptors use original engineering plans and restored original equipment to make their models and molds.

Children, on the other hand, are often more fascinated by newer farm equipment — especially toy models of equipment currently in use on farms. Right now, the Case IH Axial-Flow® combines and Magnum™ tractors are popular in both the toy and equipment industries.

Headquartered in Racine, Wis., Case is the second-largest maker of agricultural equipment in North America and the largest manufacturer and distributor of light- and medium-sized construction equipment in the world. Case products are sold in approximately 150 countries through a network of about 4,100 independent dealers and distributors.

• Wool Seamstresses Advance To Nationals After States

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md.—The 1995 Maryland Make It Yourself With Wool contest was a great success, according to Julia Lockard, chairperson for the contest planning committee. The contest, sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeder's Association and the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, was held recently at the Carroll County Agricultural Center in Westminster.

Thirty-seven participants from around the state vied for prizes including gift certificates, sewing equipment, supplies, and a trip to the National Contest to be held in New Mexico. Entries were required to be made of 100 percent wool, or a minimum of 60 percent wool and not more than 40 percent synthetic fibers.

In the preteen category, eight year old Jamie Lynn Lippy was honored with the champion prize for her two-piece vest and skirt ensemble. Jamie Lynn, the daughter of Barry and Jeanne Lippy of Lineboro, in Carroll County, has been sewing for about two years. Her red plaid Pendleton wool skirt was fully flared and had an elastic waist. The skirt was paired with a deep green Pendleton wool vest with matching red plaid bows on the front, and decorative gold-toned buttons. For her efforts, Jamie Lynn won a Riccar sewing machine.

Ten-year-old Miriam Beard, daughter of Dwayne and Lynn Beard of Hampstead, Carroll County, was reserve champion. Miriam had won the fabric for her entry, a cream and claret red plaid, at last year's contest. Her winning outfit this year consisted of a tartan kilt, a black wool vest with silver buttons, and a fully-lined claret brushed wool stadium jacket with zipper closing.

The Junior category Champion prize went to Molly Regenniter. Molly is the 13-year-old daughter of John and Mary Jo Regenniter of Mt. Airy, in Howard County. Molly won with an ensemble including a hunter green Pendleton wool vest with lots of decorative topstitching, accented by antiqued gold crest buttons down the front and on the welt pockets. Her vest topped a pair of hunter and brown plaid high-rise walking shorts. She modeled the outfit with a retro-look suede cap, green knee socks, and an off-white poor boy top. Molly, who started sewing in fourth grade, won a professional-style steam iron, and a gift certificate from Needles and Pins in Frederick. She also won a trip to the National Make It With Wool Contest, to be held in Albuquerque, New Mexico, where she will represent Maryland in the junior category.

Laura Langlotz of Monkton, Baltimore County, won the senior category. Laura entered a purple wool crepe dress with a straight line and long sleeves, over which she wore an original vest. She pieced together her own patchwork fabric in purples, pinks, greens, and plaids and checks for the vest. The cut and design of the vest was crafted by Laura to complement the patchwork fabric she created. Laura also made her own piping for the front of the vest. In addition to receiving a gift certificate from Needles and Pins, Laura won a trip to Albuquerque, where she will compete in the contest at the national level. The daughter of William and Ruth Ann Langlotz, 19-year-old Laura is this year's Maryland Lamb and Wool Queen.

Reserve senior winner was Kristin Williamson, of Cockeysville, Baltimore County. Kristin's winning outfit combined a pair of black wool pants with a coat. The coat had black wool as its base, and was embellished with alternating ribbons of black wool, ultra suede in teal and fuschia applied with reverse colored thread, and pieces of upholstery braid. There was decorative stitching in dark purple rayon thread. Kristin, age 23, is the daughter of Arthur and Judith Williamson.

Charlene Colon of Rockville, Montgomery County, was this year's adult champion. Winning the contest this year held special significance for Charlene, because it marked the 25th anniversary of her winning the contest as a sixteen-year-old high school senior in 1970. In fact, she won top honors at the local, state, and national levels that year, and received a trip to Europe as her grand prize. Entering and winning the contest in 1970 changed her whole life, according to Colon, and so entering this year was a personal challenge she set for herself.

Her winning entry consisted of a single breasted trench jacket with an extended shoulder, modified to add a high round collar, sleeve vents, welt pockets with flaps, and a wrap sash. The textured wool mohair jacket was a windowpane plaid in natural and ecru, accented with gold lurex threads, and was fully lined and underlined. Complementing the jacket was a pair of fully lined, 100 percent wool, straight legged pleated pants in seal brown. For her winning entry, Charlene won a Babylock serger machine, donated by MD Sewing Machine and Vacuum Cleaner Center in Clinton. She will send photos of her winning entry on to be judged at Albuquerque.

Reserve champion in the adult category went to Liselotte Schwab of Baltimore. Her garment was a navy wool crepe suit with a double breasted, round neck jacket and matching straight lined skirt.

Judges for the Make It Yourself With Wool contest were: Peg Howe, Ph.D., Rebecca Johnson, Joy Lyn Malcolm, Ruth Ridgely, Jan Scholl, Rhama Strite, Jane Wade, and Gen Zacharias.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — "Home. . . and homemade. . . for the Holidays was the theme at the Lebanon County Extension Holiday Program recently. More than 1,100 people attended the program, which was repeated in four sessions.

The annual program has earned the reputation of a great place to learn the latest in holiday foods, decorating, and gift making. This year was no exception. Here is a sampling of the event.

DRYING FRUITS

Drying fruits in the oven continues to be a popular holiday decoration. After the fruits are dried, they may be used as ornaments, fastened to wreaths, arranged in floral centerpieces or used as potpourri.

• Slice apples approximately ¼-inch thick. They can be sliced vertically, which will give you the apple's shape or they can be sliced horizontally, which will give you a star pattern.

• Dip the apples in a solution of 1 quart water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, and 1 tablespoon Fruit Fresh.

• Cut a piece of brown paper from a grocery bag to fit a cookie sheet, and arrange the apples in a single layer on the paper. The brown paper prevents direct contact with hot metal, which can sometimes turn your apples brown).

• Set your oven at the lowest setting. Place the apples on the cookie sheet into the oven. Turn on the oven exhaust to remove the moisture or prop oven door open with the handle of a wooden spoon for the first few hours.

• Turn the apples once during the drying period to allow both sides to dry.

• Remove the apples when they become leathery, not brown. Place them on a rack in a warm, dry place to finish the drying process. The area above the refrigerator or in your furnace room often has a warm dry environment. The process will take about 4 to 6 hours. Temperature, humidity, and water content of the fruit help make this less than an exact science.

• Slice orange, pink grapefruit, lemons, limes about ¼-inch thick.

• Cut brown paper bag to fit a cookie sheet.

• Place the cut slices on the sheet.

• Turn the oven to its lowest setting, propping the door ajar with a handle of a wooden spoon.

• Turn the citrus a few times during the drying process. Watch carefully to avoid citrus turning brown.

(Turn to Page B15)

A plain sweatshirt is quickly transformed with a snowman cut out from scraps of fabric. Tie a fabric scarf and the rib part of a child's sock for the hat. Stitch on buttons for facial features. Snow flakes are made with additional white buttons surrounded with slashes of embroidery thread.

Home And Homemade

Marianne Fritsche made some Long Johns as a gift. She will insert this note with the gift: I made some Long Johns but they turned out awfully small. In fact, I don't think they will fit at all. So take off the buttons and pull out the thread and you will have two pair of socks instead. Also, notice the plastic bucket turned into toy storage. The name of the children is glued on with fabric and a fabric covered pillow is attached to lid.

• Remove the citrus from the oven when the center pulp is barely sticky. Place them on a cooling rack and place the rack in a warm, dry location to complete the drying process.

WREATHS FOR ALL SEASONS

Ellen Spector Platt of Meadow Lark Flower & Herb Farm in Orwigsburg shared ideas on making wreaths.

• Pomegranate — Slice in half, scoop out the insides, dry the shells in oven. When dry, glue halves back together and fasten to wreath.

• If dried materials fade, spray with gold or copper paint.

• Pick hydrangea in middle to late September for best color preserved. Hang upside down to dry.

• Freeze dried materials lose colors quicker than air dried materials. May be sprayed gold to give a new look.

COPYCAT GIFTS FROM THE KITCHEN

Specialty catalogues often picture expensive food items that may be mail-ordered during the holiday season. Deitz determined how several of these items were made and shared recipes with those who attended.

"Apples in Hiding," similar to a catalog item that sells for $14.95 for two, can be made at home for a tasty but economical gift or for your own edible pleasure.

APPLES IN HIDING

Insert wooden popsicle sticks or skewers into blossom end of each apple. Dip apples into caramel to coat completely; allow excess to drip back into pan.

CHOCOLATE COVERED TORTILLA WEDGES

Cut 7-inch flour tortillas into 8 wedges. Place on baking sheet and bake at 350-400 degrees for 7-10 minutes or until crisp. Tortilla wedges can also be placed on floor or turntable of microwave and cooked on high for about 1 minute per tortilla until crisp.

Heat bulk caramel until melted; keep warm. Dip wedges into caramel to coat one or both sides. Caramel may also be brushed onto tortilla surfaces. Place on wax paper to dry.

WHITE CHOCOLATE MINT BARK

Stir in a few drops of vegetable oil if necessary, to make chocolate just barely spreadable. Stir in 5 or 6 crushed red and green hard peppermint candies.

ANSWER — A Meyerstown reader wanted a recipe for gourmet round lollipops and the name of a store or address to purchase the molds. Thanks to a Millersburg reader who writes that the molds may be purchased from Hornings Bulk Food Store of Lykens. Phone (717) 453-7261.

ANSWER — Mrs. John Liston, Terra Alta, W.V., wanted recipes using pure buckwheat flour, not buckwheat mix, to make bread, muffins, etc. Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending many recipes for numerous requests. The reader writes recipes may be adapted by substituting ¾ cup sifted buckwheat flour for 1 cup all-purpose flour. If a recipe calls for whole wheat flour, substitute an equal amount of buckwheat flour.

Buckwheat Pancakes

1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup applesauce or ½ cup water
¼ cup vegetable oil
1½ -2 cups buttermilk

Overnight Buckwheat Pancakes Old Fashioned

2½ cups warm water

1 cup wheat flour
1 cup buckwheat
1½ teaspoon salt

¼ cup melted butter

Coconut Macaroons

½ cup egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups sugar
½ teaspoon almond flavoring OR
¼ cup finely ground almonds
2½ cups moist, shredded coconut

Beat egg whites and salt until soft peaks form; gradually add sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold in almonds and coconut. Drop from teaspoon 2 inches apart on cookie sheet covered with plain paper. Bake at 325 degrees for 20 minutes.

Cool slightly before removing from pan. Makes 2½ dozen.

BUTTONS

You may have an assortment of buttons in your sewing closet. If not, they can be purchased at auctions and flea markets.

In addition to stuffed animals and dolls, Cindy Bowman-Condor showed how buttons can be used on stationery, picture frames, and jewelry. She also shared a recipe to make homemade buttons. Here it is. Baker's Clay Buttons

1 cup salt
1½ cups water

FLAVORED DIPPING MUSTARDS

According to Deitz, you can dump almost any combination of old spices into the cheapest brand of mustard and come up with a great tasting mustard.

She combined rosemary, coriander, marjoram, chives, turmeric, tarragon, cumin, allspice, celery flakes, garlic, and mustard flakes.

CHOCOLATE COVERED SESAME SEEDS

ANSWER — Sarah Clark requested a recipe for marshmallow creme. Recipes were published for frosting but an anonymous reader thinks Sarah wanted to know how to make marshmallow creme like that you purchased.

Marshmallow Creme

2½ cups corn syrup
1 cup water
½ cup warm Karo syrup
7/8 cup egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cook first three ingredients in a heavy saucepan until it reaches 242 degrees or until it forms a medium ball in cold water. Meanwhile beat Karo syrup and egg whites in a large bowl.

Beat slowly until mixed, then beat hard until light and fluffy. Pour cooked mixture into this in a fine stream. Combine completely. Beat hard for 3 minutes. Add vanilla. Pour in jars but don't cover until mixture is cold. This tastes like store-bought.

ANSWER — We received many recipes in answer to the request for using ground turkey. Here is one from Jo Utermoehler, Mercersburg. Others will be appearing in upcoming weeks as we have space.

Remove the cores from the tomatoes, cut the tomatoes into 1-inch cubes and put in the container of a food processor. Process until coarsely chopped. About 4 cups.

Heat the olive oil in a skillet and add the garlic. Cook briefly, but do not brown. Add the tomatoes, hot pepper flakes, oregano and salt and pepper to taste. Bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes. Yield: about 4 cups.

The Lasagne·

2 tablespoons olive oil
2 pounds freshly ground turkey meat
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
3 cups tomato sauce (recipe above)
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
12 lagagne noodles
2 cups ricotta cheese
¾ cup hot water
½ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons butter, melted

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Heat the olive oil in a nonstick skillet and add the turkey meat. Cook, stirring to break up the meat, until lightly browned. Add the garlic, stir. Bring to a boil over high heat and cook until the wine is evaporated. Add the tomato sauce, and salt and pepper. Bring to a boil and simmer for 5 mintues.

Meanwhile, bring a large quantity of salted water to a boil. Add the lasagne noodles, one at a time. Cook until tender. Cooking times will vary according to brand. To cool, add 2 cups ice water with a few drops of olive oil mixed in. Drain and spread the noodles, one at a time, on a damp cloth.

Beat the ricotta with the water to make it spreadable. Spread about ⅓ of the ricotta over the lasagne. Spread a layer of sauce over the ricotta and sprinkle about ¼ of the parmesan over it.

Continue making layers with the remaining ingredients, but end with a layer of lasagne. Sprinkle with the remaining Parmesan. Drizzle the melted butter over all and bake for 15 minutes or until the lasagne is piping hot and bubbling.

Kraut By The Quart

Pack loosely but firmly into sterilized quart jars by tamping with a fork, leaving 1-inch headspace. Add 2 teaspoons salt and 3 teaspoons cider vinegar to each quart. Cover with boiling water within ½ -inch of rim, pouring slowly and working air bubbles out with a fork.

Now that the leaves are off the trees and we've had some snow, it is time to do small jobs that were neglected this fall. The windows have been washed and shrubbery trimmed. Some cobwebs in the garage have been swept and old newspapers read. Allen wanted an apple pie and an elderberry pie, so I did that too.

I've even taken time to add up all of the food that I froze or canned this year and find that it is almost 500 quarts. We have 36 quarts of strawberries, 41 quarts of peaches, 52 quarts of tomatoes and 38 quarts of corn. The largest item canned was pickles. Guess I won't plant any next year as I did 120 pints this summer. That means that I did 2,321 cucumbers. Yes, I counted them as each one had to be washed and that gave me something else to do.

However, we do have a larger variety than those that I mentioned. There are 31 kinds of fruit and vegetables in our freezers and on the canning shelves. This year I did not make much jelly and jam as I had a carryover from last year.

The last things from the garden have been gathered. I dug the peanuts and found that not as many are mature as last year. The dry weather probably contributed to this fact. My husband hung up the plants in his woodworking shop so that they will dry before I roast them.

Now that our guests have gone and the turkey is almost all eaten, we'll have to find a recipe for the leftovers—that shouldn't be too difficult.

Christkindlmarkt Weekend

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.)—Mark your calendar so you won't miss the second annual Christkindlmarkt Weekend, an adaptation of a festive German tradition featuring three days of Pennsylvania German arts and crafts including demonstrations, special museum shopping, delightful performances by German musicians and dancers, and wonderful German food.

Friday, December 1 will feature demonstrations and sales by specially invited artisans from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. A Wurlitzer Band Organ Concert performed by Daniel Gates from 5:00 to 8:00 p.m. will highlight Friday's activities.

On Saturday, December 2, in addition to sales and demonstrations by the artisans there will be visits from 11:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. by Belsnickle, a forerunner of today's more kindly Santa Claus. Belsnickle's visit is sponsored by Fulton Bank. The Schuhplattler Dancers from the Lancaster Leiderkranz Club will perform at 1:30 p.m. with more German music between 5:00 and 8:00 p.m.

In addition to continued sales and demonstrations by the artisans, Sunday, December 3 will feature the Hobby Chor German Singers of the Lancaster Leiderkranz Club at 1:30 p.m.

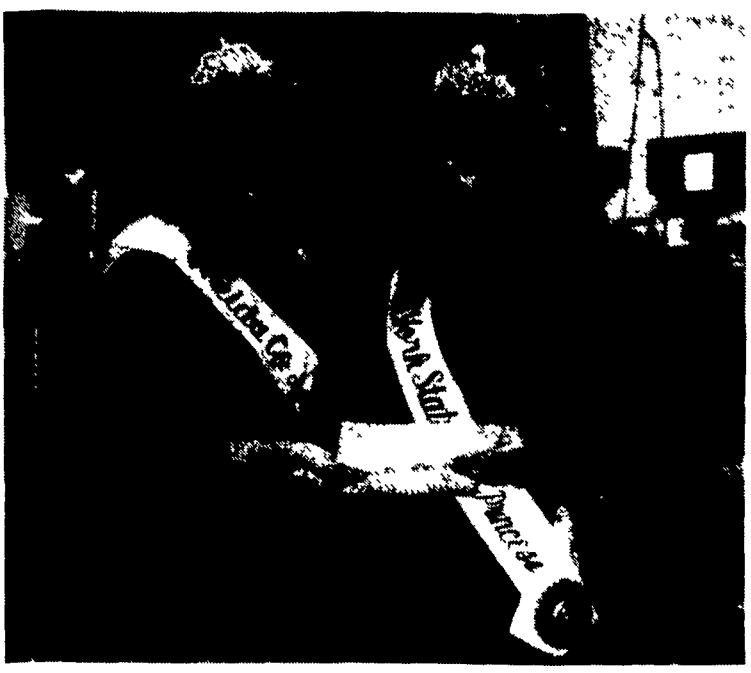
ANSWER — Roland Kamoda, Monongahela, writes that he wanted a corn slitter instead of a corn cutter. The slitter brings out the flavor of the corn even if it is past its prime. He said it's wonderful and costs only $1.45 plus shipping from Country Housewares Store, 601 Musser School Rd., Leola, PA 17540. Interesting note from Roland said that he read that Eastern Pennsylvanians eat peanut butter with corn and asked if that is how I eat it. Never heard of the custom. Frankly, it doesn't sound appealing.

Take A Look At New York Cheese

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Increasing awareness of the quality and variety of New York State cheese is the goal of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) this fall. When consumers make cheese buying decisions in supermarkets, they are overwhelmed with a variety of choices from several popular cheese-producing states. Local dairy farmers benefit from sales of New York State cheese, so it's logical for ADADC to focus their efforts in this area.

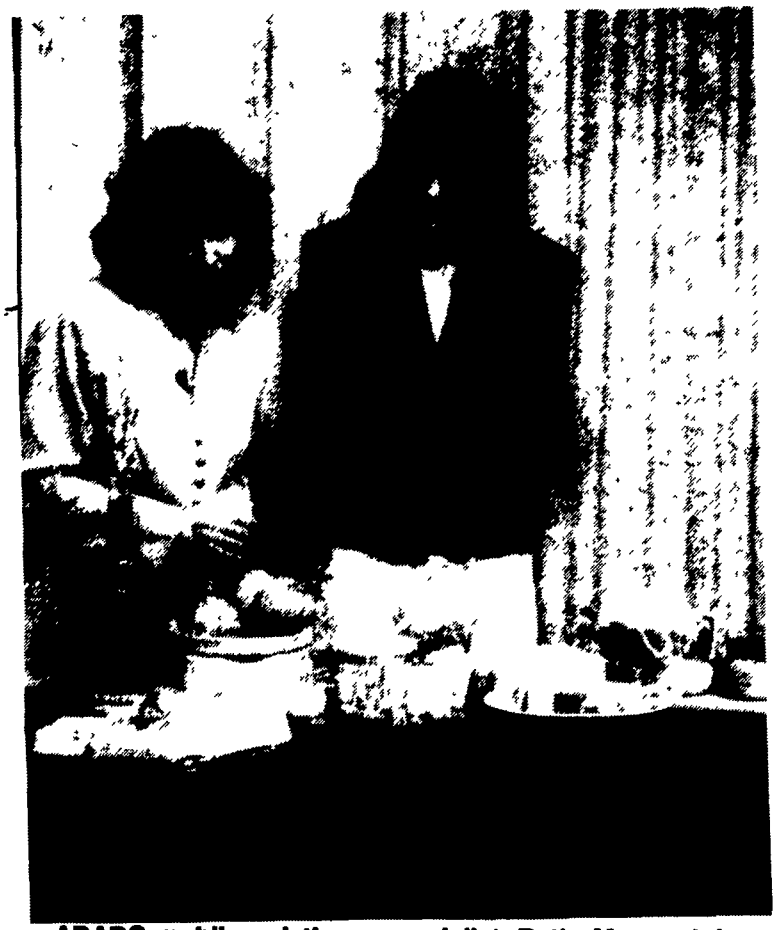


Oneida County Dairy Princess Mary Ann Kirk, left, and New York State Dairy Princess Jonelle Smith discuss the Big Cheese Contest conducted by county dairy princesses throughout New York State. They are about to announce the contest to viewers of WUTR-TV in a half an hour program to increase awareness for New York State cheese.

According to public relations specialist Beth Meyer, "Consumers associate New York State with cheddars, but many are not aware of the wide variety of other cheeses that are produced here. Getting consumers to look for New York State cheese when they are at the supermarket or deli will greatly benefit dairy farmers from ADADC's marketing area."

According to David Bandler, professor of food science at Cornell University, "New York's unique climate and soil conditions result in an abundant, high quality milk supply which in turn produces some of the world's best cheeses."

New York state is the third largest milk producing state in the U.S., and the bulk of the milk goes into cheese. More than 529 million pounds of cheese is produced each year making New York the fourth largest producer of cheese in the United States.



ADADC public relations specialist Beth Meyer, left, increases awareness for New York State cheese to Anna Bronk of WUTR-TV, the ABC affiliate in Utica. Using this attractive display, Meyer discusses the quality, variety, and versatility of New York State cheese.

Grange Names New State Master

CORNING, N.Y. — Ontario County school teacher Bruce Croucher has been elected master of the New York State Grange, the 15,000-member rural/fraternal organization based in Cortland. Croucher, who replaces William S. Benson Jr., was elected to the post by delegates to the Grange's annual meeting here.

Croucher, a math teacher in the Phelps-Clifton Springs School District for the past 29 years, has been a Grange member for 28 years and has been a state officer since 1979. He has held a number of offices and has been involved in youth activities at both the state and national levels.

A resident of Clifton Springs, Croucher is a lector and eucharistic minister at St. Felix Church and is a member of the Clifton Springs Historical Society. In addition to his work at the school, Croucher has been a director of the Ontario Yates Insurance Company for the past 25 years. A graduate of SUNY Geneseo, Croucher and his wife, Sharon, have three children — all active Grangers.

Croucher was nominated for the post over Benson, a former IBM engineer who has served as Grange Master for the past six years. Benson was later named to a three-year term on the Grange's Museum Corporation board of directors.

Future Of Ag Leadership Congress Held

WELLESLEY, Mass. — It was the most diverse group of food system leaders ever to gather for joint strategic thinking on the regional food system.

The Northeast Sustainable Agriculture Working Group (NESAWG) Leadership Congress on the Future of Agriculture and the Food System, held recently at the Center for Executive Education at Babson College, convened 53 food system leaders for two and a half days of intensive work.

The group included farmers, food processors and marketers, chefs and food service managers, financiers, educators and policy makers, and urban/consumer groups from 10 states.

Participants identified key forces and trends impacting the regional food and agriculture system and sought ways to leverage them to their individual and common advantage. Globalization of the economy, increased public awareness of health and environmental issues, loss of farms and farmland, persistent hunger and homelessness in the Northeast, and the growth of demand for specialty food items are among the major trends the group identified.

"To strengthen the Northeast food system, we have to exploit the competitive advantages we already have in the Northeast, such as the close proximity of food producers to major population centers. Creating partnerships between isolated sectors of the food system is one of our goals in this congress," said Michael Rozyne, cofounder and organizer of the NESAWG Leadership Congress.

"When I listen to what vegetable farmers go through trying to reach mass marketers, it reminds me of the teen-ager who falls in love with someone who won't love them back," said the renowned Boston chef and author Jasper White. "We in the restaurant business love dealing with farmers, and we represent a large volume. We can use everything you produce and it doesn't even have to look perfect. A lot of the time I peel your apples. I also find the local product to be more flavorful. I don't have to use as much to get the same results, which is what makes it price competitive."

The event was sponsored by the Northeast Sustainable Agriculture Working Group (NESAWG) of Belchertown, Mass. — a network of organizations and individuals representing farm, environmental, consumer, governmental, hunger, and other constituencies. The group is working toward a food system that is regionally focused, profitable for its stakeholders, and preserves the natural resource base.

Susquehanna, Union County Farmland Protected

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius commended officials in Susquehanna and Union counties for their participation in the Agricultural Security Area (ASA) program.

The program protects farmers from local township ordinances affecting farming activities and nuisance complaints, as well as protecting farms from condemnation for public purposes. The program has been approved by municipal officials in every township of the two counties.

"Agriculture is Pennsylvania's number one industry," Brosius said. "By responding to farmers in Susquehanna, Union and more than 60 other counties, township officials are participating in the Ridge Administration's drive to increase farm profitability."

Susquehanna and Union counties have the distinction of being the only counties in Pennsylvania with an ASA in every township. Susquehanna County has 29 ASAs totalling 188,605 acres with 1,515 landowners, and Union County has 10 ASAs totalling 50,114 acres with 521 landowners.

Agricultural Security Areas, which were first established in 1981, are initiated through a voluntary petition to township supervisors by local farmers who collectively own at least 250 acres of farmland.

Farmland being considered for easement purchase through the department's Farmland Protection Program must be located in an ASA.

There are 640 ASAs comprising 2.6 million acres in 64 counties throughout the state. Venango County had its first township ASA approved on Oct. 5, becoming the 64th county to participate in the ASA program.

INFECTIOUS BRONCHITIS: DEVELOPMENTS AND CURRENT STATUS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Barrett S. Cowen, MS, Ph.D., Wiley Laboratory Dept. Of Veterinary Science

Infectious bronchitis (IB) is an acute, highly contagious disease of the respiratory tract of chickens and is caused by avian coronavirus, infectious bronchitis virus (IBV).

The respiratory manifestations of this disease were first observed in young chickens in North Dakota in 1931. In the ensuing years, IB has assumed a worldwide distribution and is commonly seen in countries where chickens are produced commercially.

Although mortality in chickens less than four weeks of age can be caused by both respiratory and kidney infections produced by IBV, most economic losses result from poor feed conversion, egg production declines, egg quality problems, and secondary airsacculitis that may cause condemnation at processing.

Mixed infections involving several IBV serotypes, Newcastle disease virus, fowl adenoviruses, and coliform bacteria are common and frequently complicate diagnostic efforts.

Infectious bronchitis virus (IBV) isolates have traditionally been grouped into serotypes based on virus neutralization tests. Although numerous distinct IBV serotypes have been reported in the U.S., most isolates causing disease in the field belong to Massachusetts (Mass), Connecticut (Conn), or Arkansas (Ark) serotypes.

Live vaccines containing Mass and Conn serotypes are routinely used in the field. The Ark, JMK, Florida, and Delaware variant (92-072) serotypes are used as vaccines by special approval (eg., state veterinarian) and only in those regions where these serotypes are prevalent.

However, outbreaks of IB do occur in vaccinated flocks and these vaccine failures are not always the result of infection by distinct serotypes. It has been suggested that these failures could be caused by antigenic variants of IBV emerging from wild-type or vaccine viruses by mutation or recombination.

During the winter of 1991/1992 and spring of 1992, an economically significant increase in acute complicated and uncomplicated respiratory disease was observed in broilers in Delaware. Clinical and serological evaluation of affected flocks suggested IBV as being the cause. This was later confirmed by virus isolations and characterization studies.

Of several IBV isolates evaluated, it became evident that a single, previously unrecognized serotype of IBV was most commonly found. One of these isolates, (92-072) was found to be more pathogenic in broilers than in specific-pathogen-free (SPF) white Leghorns. In broilers it produced facial edema, lacrimation, sinusitis, and severe thoracic and abdominal airsacculitis.

Conventional vaccination programs were found to be relatively ineffective in controlling the disease in an industry setting. Because of this concern, a commercial vaccine (Mallinckrodt Veterinary, Inc., Millsboro, Del.) was developed and is now available against this new serotype.

Commencing in November 1994, Pennsylvania broiler producers began observing an increase in respiratory disease among their broiler flocks. Morbidity was very high in affected flocks with respiratory signs being the primary feature. Mortality ranged from 3-23 percent while airsac condemnations at processing ranged from 0.7-20 percent.

The gross lesions observed were very similar to those reported in Delaware in 1991/92. As a result of the efforts of professionals and staff of the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System (PADLS) and others, this respiratory disease was found to be IB. More interestingly, subtyping of isolated IBV revealed that there were some previously unrecognized antigenic types of IBV in Pennsylvania associated with this airsacculitis; specifically Ark and 92-072 serotypes. In addition to broilers, these same serotypes have also been isolated from started pullets and layers, and in one case (92-072) was associated with respiratory disease.

Experimental studies at Wiley Laboratory, Penn State University, have demonstrated that a commercial live Mass-type vaccine will not adequately protect (only 30 percent protection) against a challenge with the 92-072 strain of IBV. Additionally, there have been numerous (20 or more) IBV isolated from both broilers and layers in Pennsylvania in the past two years which are untypeable using contemporary methodology (that is, monoclonal-based IFA or AC-ELISA and PCR).

Based on prevalence information gathered by PADLS on Ark and Delaware isolates 92-072 in Pennsylvania, the Bureau of Animal Industry recently approved the use of live Ark and 92-072 vaccines in the state.

Pennsylvania's poultry producers are already evaluating the use of Ark and 92-072 vaccines in broilers and are most commonly water vaccinating at 14 days of age with one or both of these virus strains as a follow-up to a hatchery vaccination with a combination Mass and Conn vaccine. Most likely some of Pennsylvania's commercial layer organizations will initiate similar vaccination programs in the near future.

Solanco, State FFA Officers Conduct Leadership Courses

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.)—Eighth graders at Smith and Swift Middle Schools were introduced to some valuable leadership training techniques through a series of workshops that was offered at each of the schools recently.

State and Solanco FFA chapter officers conducted the series of leadership training courses for the second year. The courses were taught to Swift Middle School eighth graders last year, and were expected to include eighth graders at Smith this year. This is the only leadership training series of its kind in the state.

During the day-long training, five workshops were conducted in addition to outside activities which provided an opportunity for students to use some of their leadership skills, including their ability to work together to achieve a goal, building trust among peers, and cooperation in groups.

"We're using games and activities to introduce leadership skills and topics to the students," said Andy Young, organizer of the day's events and Solano FFA's third vice president.

The outside activities consisted of a trust-building activity where students fell backwards off of a platform, trusting others to catch them; a group cooperation activity where students stood on a long cylinder and had to get in alphabetical order by their last names without talking or getting off of the cylinder; and the third activity was also a group activity where students had to cooperate and work with each other to walk on wooden ski-like objects while competing with another team to the finish line.

Young said they target eighth grade students to help prepare them for their high school years and to recruit them to become involved in high school activities and organizations.

"We try to stress the characteristics of good leaders," said Young, with one important characteristic being good public speaking skills.

"Public speaking and leadership go hand-in-hand," Young told a group of eighth graders. "You have to be able to communicate. If you can't communicate, you won't be able to lead very well."

Swift Middle School eighth grader, Kelly Seefeldt, thought the training workshops were a good idea for her and her classmates because often times students must work together in classes to complete group projects.

"(The sessions) will help us work together better as a team and to trust our teammates and cooperate with each other," Seefeldt said. She felt the information on setting goals was particularly helpful to her.

Classmate Jere Thomas agreed with Seefeldt that the information will be of help to eighth graders because of all the group activities and work students do in their classes.

"This was helpful because we work in groups at school and we'll need to know how to work together for when we get jobs," said Thomas. "(Peers) don't always get along and it gets in the way of working together and learning. Some people can't get past not being friends and having to work together on something."

"We hope it was beneficial to the students and they learned something from the workshops," said Young.

A Swift Middle School eighth grader in the Mules jersey prepares to fall backward off of a platform into the arms of FFA members during a trust-building activity. The exercise was part of the FFA leadership training workshops offered to Solanco School District eighth graders.

Gloucester County Agriculture Honors Two At Meeting

CLAYTON, N.J. — Albert Scott and Richard S. Brown were honored recently by the Gloucester County Board of Agriculture at its annual meeting at Masso's Crystal Manor in Glassboro, N.J.

Scott, a nurseryman in Deptford Township, owns Scott Farms Nursery with his son, David. They grow 25 acres of container and 35 acres of field grown trees and shrubs.

In presenting the award, George Dean, secretary of the board, said, "Scott's Nursery was founded by Al Scott in 1981 and has grown to a model farming operation, and a modern innovative container growing nursery."

Dean said, "Al Scott is recognized as a conscious neighbor and has been very public relations oriented in his community and in promoting agriculture. He has been a frequent host for public relations tours, and of educational programs offered by Rutgers Cooperative Extension."

Richard S. Brown, a retired grain and dairy farmer in East Greenwich Township, was also recognized for his accomplishments. Leonard Grasso, legislative chair of the Gloucester County Board of Agriculture, said, "Richard has worked tirelessly for many agricultural organizations after a successful career as an agribusinessman."

Grasso recognized Richard Brown as a long-time leader and a former director of the 4-H Fair Association and a 55-year member of the New Jersey State Grange. "Richard Brown has served the Grange in numerous positions at the local, county, and state levels and is currently a member of the New Jersey State Grange Legislative Committee," said Grasso.

BUSINESS ◆ NEWS

Sensenig Wins Use Of Forage Box

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.)—Delbert Sensenig took a chance when he visited the 1995 Ag Progress Days held at Penn State University this past summer.

The Shippensburg-area dairy farmer took it when he entered a contest to win the use of a new model of a Gehl forage box for one year.

Sensenig was chosen as the winner from among 500 people from Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Ohio and West Virginia, said Robert Weimer, Gehl's district sales manager.

Weimer said his company staged this first-ever contest to give away the use of one of its machines to promote the new model forage box it has just put on the market.

The list price of the machine that Sensenig has won is $9,800, Weimer said. He said its features include a variable speed system drive and a new beater design.

Sensenig shouldn't have any trouble finding a use for the forage box on his farm. He said he farms approximately 200 acres, where he has 46 milking cows and raises heifer replacements.

Although Gehl itself is based in Wisconsin, the forage box that Sensenig has won the use of has a local connection, Weimer said.

He said the machine was made at a plant in Lebanon that his firm just opened in 1992.

Fusion Labeled For Johnsongrass

WILMINGTON, Del.—Fusion postemerge soybean herbicide was recently labeled for control of rhizome johnsongrass at 10 to 12 ounces per acre.

"At the 12 ounce rate, Fusion controls rhizome johnsongrass up to 18 inches tall. Provided certain label conditions are met, growers can use the 10 ounce rate on light infestations when soil moisture, temperature and humidity are favorable," said Chuck Foresman, technical business lead for Zeneca.

American Cyanamid Major Sponsor Of Training Programs

WAYNE, N.J.—When commodity group leaders gain a solid understanding of environmental, trade, and farm policy issues facing their members, they can exert a greater impact on the shaping of national and state legislation.

That's the basic premise behind major professional development programs that American Cyanamid co-sponsors with organizations representing cotton, wheat, and soybeans.

"We've long felt that by working closely to polish the leadership skills of commodity group leaders, we can ultimately boost the attention paid to issues critical to agricultural producers," said Jim Thrift, American Cyanamid manager of business relations. "This is true in congressional chambers as well as Farm Belt statehouses.

"We're also seeing a rapid change in the international business community due to trade agreements including GATT and NAFTA," said Thrift. "It is critical that producers carry their industry messages forward to those parties making decisions."

Thrift manages the Cyanamid Agribusiness Group, with agribusiness managers on staff at each of Cyanamid's six regional offices. These individuals coordinate the commodity group leadership programs as well as other center-of-influence activities supported through Cyanamid funding.

Forage Harvester Fills Need

RACINE, Wis. — To answer customer demand for a Category II forage harvester, Case Corporation has introduced the Case IH 8725.

According to Davis Hess, Case senior product manager-hay and forage, the new model 8725 will satisfy customers desiring a simple and dependable Class II pull-type forage harvester. He said Class II customers still comprise about 40 percent of the total pull-type forage harvester market in North America.

"There were a lot of requests from both dealers and customers for a highly productive, mid-sized forage harvester," Hess said. "In response to those requests, we've made numerous improvements to our previous, well-accepted model, and the result is the Case IH 8725 forage harvester."

Targeted for small and medium-size dairy and livestock customers relying on 100-150 horsepower tractors, the 8725 is a "cut and blow" type forage harvester with improved performance, reliability, and serviceability at a competitive price.

One of the many benefits of the new model is component standardization with the larger and more deluxe Case IH 8750 forage harvester. Hess said this is especially true of PTO and driveline components, and stocking, ordering and replacing common parts.

Hess said a remote lube bank is standard on the 8725, making left-side feedroll bearings and pivots easy to lubricate. "We want to make the routine maintenance tasks very simple for operators to perform," Hess said. "Not only will it save time, but it also will make operators willing to follow the recommended maintenance schedule. That's going to add years of life to the machine."

That same philosophy is evident for knife-sharpening and shear-bar adjustment, Hess said. He explained that knives are sharpened by reversing cutterhead rotation and operating the touch-up stone mechanism. "We've made the sharpening system quick and simple to encourage farmers to use it frequently," he said. "In addition to improved machine performance, with sharp knives and a properly adjusted shear bar the knives last longer."

A new cutting cylinder in the 8725 has three spiders and eight flat spiral knives. Hess said the flat knife design is more durable than the previous "C" style knife.

Research Finds No Health, Environmental Risks With Use Of 2,4-D

CHICAGO, Ill. — Extensive research confirms that the herbicide 2,4-D poses no significant risk to farm workers' health or to the environment.

That conclusion, supported by almost 270 studies conducted during the past six years, was presented here at a day-long symposium by members of an industry task force.

"We have completed 90 percent of the studies required by the EPA for reregistration of 2,4-D, and none of the studies suggest that the chemical poses any significant risk when used properly," said Don Page, executive director of the Industry Task Force II on 2,4-D Research Data.

That's good news for farmers, turf and lawn care operators and home owners, all of whom use the inexpensive herbicide to control a broad spectrum of broadleaf weeds on crops such as corn and soybeans, as well as golf courses, lawns, roadsides, and utility rights of way.

The 50-year-old product is the most frequently used herbicide worldwide and remains the third most popular herbicide in the United States. Use in this country, Page noted, is actually increasing because of the herbicide's growing popularity in no-till and minimum-till crop production systems.

The studies required for reregistration included a battery of toxicology and residue work as well as research tracing the environmental fate of the chemical's acid, ester, and amine salt forms.

The six-year research effort, which cost some $25 million, was funded principally by the task force's current members — Rhone-Poulenc Ag Company, DowElanco, Nufarm USA, and AGRO-GOR — all manufacturers of products containing 2,4-D.

According to William Mahlburg, chairman of the task force's Toxicology Subcommittee, a number of rodent studies confirm that 2,4-D, when ingested orally, is actually less toxic than many other more commonly consumed compounds, including caffeine, and about as toxic as aspirin.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

The major costs on dairy and livestock farms are related to FEED: production...harvesting...storage...purchases...delivery to animals. Significant savings in time and money are possible when you store and deliver your feed from a poured concrete silo.

"As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: This can have as great an influence on Profit as milk price changes."

Protect your valuable feeds from rain, sleet, snow, mud, ice, wind and the sun's heat. Reduce the stress. INCREASE THE EFFICIENCY OF YOUR FEEDS, LABOR, AND LIVESTOCK!

At Sollenberger Silos Corp. we know a lot about feed storage and handling; we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call...We'd like to contribute to your success!!

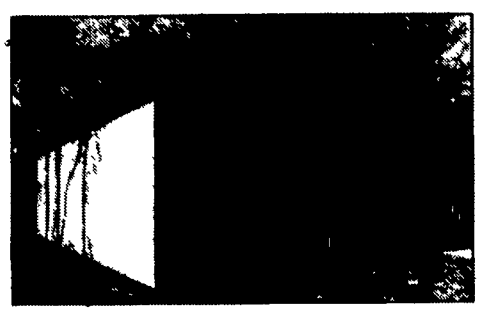
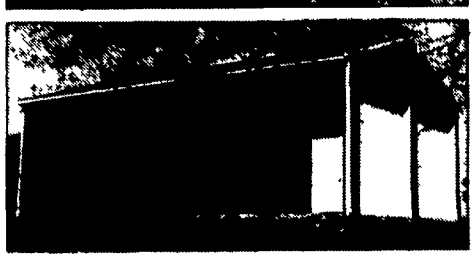
Side with Alumax ALU-TUFF Steel





When you put up a building, you expect it to be attractive and to last. A building constructed with ALU-TUFF will meet those expectations. That's because ALU-TUFF is made using top-quality materials, super-tough protective coatings, and a unique rib design that's both functional and attractive.

Years from now when other buildings are starting to show their age, your building will still look good.

- A STRONG PROFILE High 3/4-inch ribs on nine-inch centers give ALU-TUFF exceptionally high spanning properties for its weight and thickness, while stiffening ribs in flat areas prevent rippling.
- MADE TO LAST To keep Alu-Tuff working hard and looking good for years to come, we protect it with an oven-cured system of four different coatings.
- A GREAT LOOKING PANEL You don't have to sacrifice good looks to get a tough steel panel.
- MORE QUALITY FEATURES Each ALU-TUFF sheet is 38 inches wide to provide 36-inch coverage. That's wide enough to minimize the number of side laps, yet narrow enough to be easy to handle.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31,000	$28,000
Cost of electricity @ .08 kW for 12,000 lbs milk day for 10 years	$17,550	$22,850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48,550	$50,850

Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Company To Facilitate National Project On Land Grant Future

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Mark Stanley & Company has been selected as outside consultants for a nationwide strategic planning program to determine the future direction of agricultural and natural resources activities of America's 72 land grant universities.

This year-long outreach effort will involve input from dozens of policy makers, academicians, and users of food and agricultural services that are provided by the nation's land grant institutions.

"This is a results-oriented program," according to John H. Ramsey, president of Mark Stanley & Company. "We plan to dialogue with persons from all segments of the Land Grant Universities' constituent base, then develop a measurable action agenda that can be fully implemented in the near future."

Ramsey will be assisted by veteran agricultural consulting professional Paul S. Weller, Jr., and noted conference facilitator Dr. Dabney G. Park. Both are senior partners in Mark Stanley & Company.

The joint long-range planning activity is a project of the Board on Agriculture of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges (NASULGC) through a grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation. It will place major emphasis upon research from state agricultural experiment stations, outreach activities of the cooperative extension service, and land grant academic and international programs.

The goal of the project is to evaluate and chart a future direction for research, education, and communications services provided by the 130-year-old land grant university system.

Mark Stanley & Company and the NASULGC faculty will coordinate the joint futuring activity with several complementary programs already under way, several of which are funded by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation.

"This will provide an unparalleled opportunity to gather information, compare results, and develop a joint action plan," according to Ramsey. Mark Stanley & Company will organize and facilitate two national conferences and a series of regional listening sessions, beginning in January, as part of this strategic planning project.

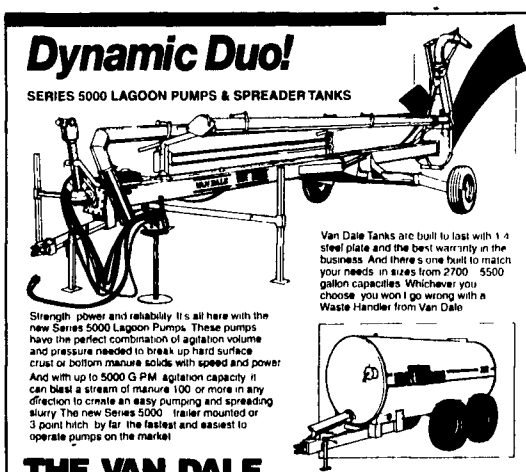
SERIES 5000 LAGOON PUMPS & SPREADER TANKS



Van Dale Tanks are built to last with 1/4 steel plate and the best warranty in the business. And there's one built to match your needs in sizes from 2700 - 5500 gallon capacities. Whichever you choose, you won't go wrong with a Waste Handler from Van Dale.

The new Series 5000 trailer mounted or 3 point hitch, by far the fastest and easiest to operate pumps on the market.

Fluted Roll Feed Cup Assemblies Save Seed and Save Time

A Known Fact That Case IH Die-Cast Zinc Alloy Feed Cups Are Superior To Other Competitive Brands Long Life Comes From Oil-Impregnated, Molded Sintered Metal Inserts Acts As A Positive Bearing Surface To Surround And Support The Fluted Roll

Why settle for inferior look-alikes when you can have genuine CASE IH fluted roll feed cup assemblies — reowned for accuracy, smooth operation and long life.

MASSEY FERGUSON®

This option for cab and footstep model MF 375, MF 390, MF 390T and MF 399 tractors provides on-the-go speed changes without clutching. All shifts are fully synchronized, even between ranges, for maximum comfort, convenience and productivity.

MF 399 with 18 Speedshift Transmission

DMI

DMI's Patented Point Makes The Difference

ECOLOTIL SYSTEMS

DMI SYSTEM	Min. HP Required
3 Shank Ecolotil	80
5 Shank Ecolotil	130
527 Ecolotiger	130
530 Ecolotiger	170
730 Ecolotiger	250

Each of these machines can be equipped to meet your particular needs. Your choices include shank style, shank arrangement, coulters/ discs, rear levelers or point style.

Soil Compaction is a problem on every farm we've checked. Breaking up the compaction layer

1) decreases soil run-off in wet years, by permitting water to percolate into the subsoil

2) makes room for plant roots systems to seek and find moisture in dry years

Don Deetz
Dairy Consultant
Purina Mills

A combination of nitrogen and protein sources are featured in high-energy Purina® Dairy products (Maxi-Tech® Super-EXT® and Ultimate EXT®). Result of studies at Purina Mills' Dairy Research Unit indicate that rumen microbial activity is increased and digestibility of ration fiber components are improved when urea is added as a nitrogen source to fat-containing rations.

"...Can We Still Feed Ultimate EXT?"

Customers frequently ask, "Can we still use the protein and nitrogen sources in Ultimate EXT to obtain high production? We're feeding high-quality alfalfa silage". These managers have heard suggestions that "too much soluble protein" will result in rations of this type. Furthermore, some have been counseled that all rations which use high-quality alfalfa silage must have exotic protein sources added to the ration. Protein sources usually recommended with these opinions are blood meal, fish meal, and other animal by-products. Reasons for including these protein sources include: "too much soluble protein"; "not enough bypass protein"; or "blood urea nitrogen levels will be too high". Seldom mentioned are the added expense of some of the protein sources or a potential lack of palatability associated with these protein sources. Even with total mixed rations, palatability can be a problem when large amounts of some animal by-product protein sources are fed.

Research With Alfalfa Silage

° Ration Was: 60% Alfalfa Silage; 40% Grain (Dry Matter [DM] Basis)

Dry Matter	45.9% DM Basis
Crude Protein (CP)	20.2% DM Basis
Acid Detergent Fiber	36.7% DM Basis
Neutral Detergent Fiber	43.5% DM Basis
Undegradable Intake Protein	22.4% Of Total CP

° Production Trial During Weeks 4-17 Of Lacation ° Rations were:
- Ration 1: Supplemental Protein Sources - Soybean Meal and Urea (Urea = 0.68% Ration DM).
- Ration 2: Supplemental Protein Sources - Soybean Meal and Urea (Urea = 0.02% Ration DM).
- Ration 3: Supplemental Protein Sources - Animal By-Products and Urea (Urea = 0.79%; Animal By-Products = 2.72% Ration DM).
- Ration 4: Supplemental Protein Sources - Animal By-Products, Soybean Meal, and Urea (Urea = 0.10%; Animal By-Products = 3.15% Ration DM).
- Ration 5: Supplemental Protein Sources - Animal By-Products and Urea (Urea = 0.40%; Animal By-Products = 4.86% Ration DM).
- Ration 6: Supplemental Protein Sources - Animal By-Products, Soybean Meal, and Urea (Urea = 0.03%; Animal By-Products = 7.02% Ration DM).

° Urea Intake Ranged Higher Than Typical Purina Program:
- Minimum: 0.01 (Ration 2) and 0.02 (Ration 6) Lbs./Day.
- Maximum: 0 39 (Ration 1) and 0.44 (Ration 3) Lbs./Day.

° Concentration of Plasma Urea Nitrogen Was Not Influenced By Protein Degradability or Protein Source
° Addition of Animal By-Products To Ration In Amounts Ranging From 1.5 - 3.8 Lbs. DM / Day Decreased Total Dry Matter Intake By Up To 5.1 Lbs. (See Figure).

Herd performance is often enhanced when Purina nutrient-dense supplements and superior forages, such as high-quality alfalfa silage, are combined in the feeding program The sources of protein and nitrogen in Purina high-energy products can provide opportunities for additional production and profit, even if alfalfa silage is a staple forage source in your feeding program.
